Sullivan Aide Wires Premier, Asking Probe

MONTREAL (CP)—Fiery J. A. (Pat) Sullivan today let go with another blast at what he called increasing Communist infiltration into labor unions, charging in a statement that "there are very few trade unions in Canada who haven't in their ranks, if not active party members, at least sympathizers and fellow travelers."

Later C.L.S.U. headquarters announced that John Harding, the union's secretary-treasurer, had sent a telegram to Prime Minister King calling for "a full investigation" into "the facts" carried in the statement.

The telegram said Sullivan "is more than willing to testify under oath and assist into substantiating his charges."

Harding said the union meantime requested that Sullivan be given "complete police protection."

INSTRUCTIONS FROM OUTSIDE

Repeating many of the charges he made last March when he resigned as head of the Canadian Seamen's Union, the 52-year-old Sullivan who formed his own Canadian Lake Seamen's Union, said in the statement he had found out during his 11 years as a member of the Communist Party that "there is not a move made in this country prior to the Stalinist brain trusts taking it up with their political bosses outside of the Dominion."

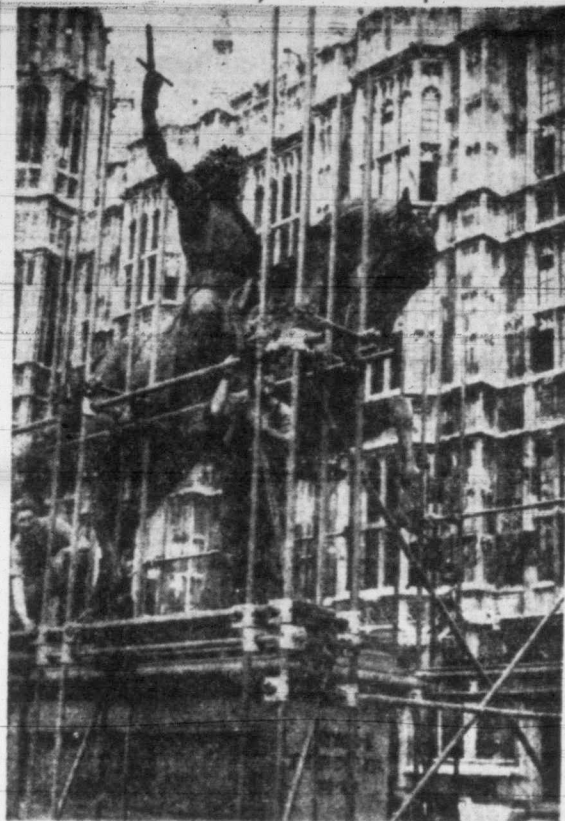

The four-page, 2,000-word typewritten statement was handed to reporters at a post-midnight press conference in a north-end Montreal apartment.

The C.S.L.U. president's latest blast brought the prompt comment by Harry Davis, C.S.U. president, that Sullivan is "a Judas and a liar who sold out to the shipowners."

Davis denied Communist influence in his union and termed Sullivan's statement "red-baiting in a very amateurish form."

The Sullivan statement said that "since the early 20's this Communist Party's aim had been to recruit members among the trade unions and the various mass and cultural organizations, with special emphasis being laid on the work to be done among the trade unions."

Statue Missed By Bomb Repaired

Although the bronze statue of Richard I (Richard Coeur de Lion, 1157-1159) received the full force of a German bomb near the Houses of Parliament in 1940, it escaped almost undamaged, but Richard's sword was bent by the blast and the blade has now broken off—looking something like a Crusader's Cross, held aloft by the lion-hearted king. Photo shows workmen erecting scaffolding around the statue, to carry out work of renovation.

Second Request Going Before Board Monday

Gasoline retailers throughout the province are now seeking a one-cent-a-gallon increase in the price of gasoline and the first applications are expected to be before Dr. W. A. Carrothers, chairman of the B.C. coal and petroleum board, by Monday.

Dr. Carrothers said today he has already received two preliminary letters—one from the gasoline dealers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association and one from the Garage and Motor Trades Association—indicating application would soon be made for the price increase.

At least six retail gasoline dealers in the Greater Victoria area now are preparing applications and briefs to be sent into the board. Main argument in the briefs seeking the price increase will be the cost of labor which garagemen estimate has gone up an average of 80 per cent since 1939.

Although labor is the major argument, other costs, such as those for materials, have also gone up and these increases will be used in the argument for the boost.

The price to the retailer, known as the tank-wagon price, is also under review. Oil companies now have an application before the board seeking an increase of from one and one-half cents to three cents a gallon.

At present Vancouver Island, Fraser Valley and the Greater Vancouver and the Fraser Valley retailers are allowed a four-cent a gallon spread from the wholesale price, while retailers elsewhere in the province are allowed five-cent spread.

Present price of gasoline here has been fixed since 1939 at 32

cents a gallon for the premium

grade and 30 cents a gallon for standard gasoline. The minimum price increase asked by the retailers and oil companies, if granted, would boost the cost on

Vancouver Island, Greater Vancouver and Fraser Valley to 34

cents and 32 cents, respectively,

while gasoline elsewhere in the province would go up to 35 and 33 cents. Granting of the maximum demands would send retail gasoline prices to 36 and

34 cents in the coast area and 37

and 35 elsewhere in the province.

Dutch To Contact Indonesian Leaders When Current 'Police Action' Eases

THE HAGUE (AP)—The Dutch will seek contact with Indonesian Republican leaders and former Premier Sutan Sjahrir as soon as the current "police action" in The Netherlands East Indies is considered eased, an authoritative source said today.

(Sjahrir, in New Delhi seeking arms and equipment for the Indonesians, said today Mahommed Ali Jinnah, Governor-General-designate of the projected Moslem Dominion of Pakistan, had "promised us every kind of help we wanted.")

The authoritative source said he expected the armed action would ease next week. The Dutch would leave untouched the proper Republican area of the capital, Jogjakarta, in central Java.

"Our main aims are to safeguard Dutch as well as foreign property and to restore the food situation and water and power installations," he said.

COASTLINE HELD

BATAVIA (AP)—A Netherlands communique said today Dutch forces, moving almost at will under a fiery tropical sun, had cleared a broad 160-mile stretch of northwest coastal Java between Batavia and Cheribon, and indicated eastern Java now was firmly in Dutch hands.

The Indonesian Republican army claimed successes both in Java and Sumatra, but most of these were categorically denied by the Dutch.

U.S. trained Dutch marines and infantrymen were mopping up both in eastern and western Java, the Dutch communique said.

However, the Dutch admitted sharpened Indonesian activity in the Modjokerto area, 25 miles south of Soerabaja in east central Java. The communique placed Dutch troops at Lawang, 10 miles north of the Republican stronghold of Malang, which unofficial reports earlier had said the Dutch had captured. An Indonesian communique said Republican forces had captured Modjokerto, and that the Dutch had not passed Lawang, but that an eight-kilometer spearhead had been pushed back there.

INDONESIAN CLAIMS

The latest Indonesian successes reported by the republican army told of action in west, central and east Java.

(Harris Jackson of the Associated Press reported from Jogjakarta that the Indonesians estimated Dutch casualties to date at 9,000.

He said Gen. Soedirman, Republican commander, had given this figure in a press conference today and said it had come from Dutch informants loyal to the republic.

(The latest Dutch casualty figures, issued in Batavia communique Friday, listed 32 Netherlands soldiers killed, 41 wounded and seven missing—a total loss of 80. There was no definite indication of the period referred to.) The Indonesian army said it had:

1. Recaptured Tjitelangka, about 15 miles east of Bandoeng. Bandoeng is roughly 75 miles southeast of Batavia in the interior.

2. Driven the Dutch from Goenongpati southeast of Semarang four hours after the Dutch captured the place with four tanks and 11 truckloads of soldiers. Semarang is on the north coast some 150 miles east of Cheribon.

3. Beaten back attacks by eight Dutch tanks on Lawang 15 miles north of Malang in the interior of east Java.

Truman's Envoy To China Leaves Natives Surprised

SHANGHAI (AP)—Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer flew here today on his fact-finding tour for President Truman, following such a swift pace he left some complaining Chinese officials in Nan-king.

At his present rate of travel, he was expected to finish his work in China in little more than four weeks and move on to Korea.

One Chinese official in Nan-king, said Wedemeyer was "extremely close-mouthed" and kept the Chinese so busy answering questions they were unable to get even a hint of his reaction to the information they furnished.

A member of the mission, said Wedemeyer was forming recommendations on the basis of what he has been hearing, "but you

May Bring $5 Sugar Coupon Free Here From U.S. Visit

Owing to the recent devaluation of sugar in the United States, Canadians visiting on the other side may bring sugar coupon free, into Canada up to the value of $5 a person. W. A. Hick, ration officer with the Sugar Administration, ration division, in the Belmont Building, said today.

Mr. Hick received this news from the Montreal offices of the Sugar Administration following inquiries made by residents here.

"It has been decided no action will be taken to collect sugar coupons from Canadians returning to Canada from the United States for sugar imports up to the value of $5 a person," the Sugar Administration informed Mr. Hick.

Mr. Hick pointed out that the ruling was concerned only with the matter of ration coupons, and had nothing to do with the question of import duty.

If prices in the United States on sugar are similar to those prevailing here, each Canadian tourist would be allowed to bring approximately 50 pounds of sugar, coupon free, into Canada.

According to the Canadian Custom officials, Canadians staying longer than 48 hours in the United States, could bring back $5 worth of sugar duty free. If, however, they were visiting for a period less than 48 hours, they would have to pay duty on the sugar purchase.

Sea Serpent Has Them Guessing

The wall-eyed "sea serpent" caught by a Port Angeles fisherman has residents there as well as fish experts stumped as to its breed. The six-foot two-inch creature has an aluminum-like coat which is easily rubbed off and two rows of bony frontal ridges. Some believe the monster to be the same "sea serpent" which cavorted in Seattle's Lake Washington for two weeks this spring.

18,000 Slovakia Jews Desire To Go To Palestine

BRATISLAVA, Slovakia (AP)—The Jew who first told the world of the million horrors of Auschwitz—and was doubted by his own race—is leading the Zionist campaign of migration in Slovakia today.

Dr. Vojtech Winterstein reports that 110,000 Slovakian Jews were exterminated during the war. Of the 30,000 survivors, he claims 60 per cent have formally signified their desire to go to Palestine.

"I'm going myself next year," the noted Bratislava lawyer said. "I'm through with Europe, where people still mutter 'a stinking Jew' behind my back."

Since the spring of 1945 he has supervised the departure of 1,500 Jews for the Holy Land where, he admits, "most arrived illegally according to British regulations."

Besides pleading the Zionist cause, Dr. Winterstein is engaged in fighting for complete restitution of former Jewish property in Slovakia.

All Jewish property was seized in 1940 by the pro-Nazi government of Father Josef Tiso, who was hanged this year for crimes against the Slovak people. Dr. Winterstein estimated the property's current replacement value was approximately $50,000,000, of which only 10 per cent had been returned to Jews.

4-Year Contract Not Approved

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lloyd Easter, president of the local Street Railwaymen's Union, said Friday the B.C. Electric Railway's request for a four-year contract was the union's main objection to a proposed agreement.

Under a four-year plan, wage negotiations would be prohibited until March, 1949, while discussions on working conditions could not be conducted until 1950. Union members in Victoria, Vancouver and New Westminster voted 97 per cent for rejection of the company's offer.

Further negotiations on the present contract await the return of company president A. E. Grauer.

Men From 5 Reserve Units Conclude Summer Training Camp At Macaulay

First of a series of training camps to be held on Vancouver Island during this summer concluded today with representatives from five of Canada's reserve army regiments breaking camp at Macaulay Point and heading back home to resume civilian employment in offices, banks, garages and schools.

Units represented at the camp were: 20th Heavy Ack-Ack Regiment, Edmonton; 43rd Heavy Ack-Ack Regiment, Vancouver; 15th Coast Regiment, Vancouver, with representation from Prince Rupert; 5th Coast Regiment, Victoria, and West Coast Signals Regiment.

The men who attended this first camp were specially chosen from officers, non-commissioned officers and specialists of these units to receive advanced training on army subjects so that they might be qualified to go back and act as instructors to the others in their regiment.

"This year it was only possible to bring a limited number from each unit to camp. Next year we hope to bring the whole regiment," one officer explained.

While at camp, men from the heavy ack-ack units have been given courses on predictors, radar and gunnery and have experienced actual firing practice with anti-aircraft guns. Representatives from the two coast regiments were given instruction on searchlights, radar, counter bombardment and plotting room procedure and were taken to Ridd Hill for gunnery practice with twin six pounders. The signalmen have been given courses on communication, driving and maintenance of signal vehicles and have been given practical training by working in conjunction with the gun crews.

"We have learned a lot and have had a good time," one of the reservists commented.

Youngest member of the camp, John Hryckowian, who tells the officers he is inside the age limit of 18 but looks about 15, said the camp was "fine."

"We have comfortable cots in the barracks and they feed us good," he said. "For dinner we have soup, meat, potatoes, cabbage, peas, dessert and coffee or milk."

Young John is one of 24 gunners and 12 officers from the 20th Heavy Ack-Ack Regiment which meets every Tuesday evening. He is also a corporal in his school cadet corps at Victoria High School, Edmonton.

Sunday, two more summer camps will get underway. At Macaulay Point, the 65th Light Ack-Ack Regiment, Vancouver; 66th Light Ack-Ack Regiment, Nanaimo, and the 68th Light Ack-Ack Regiment, Calgary, will move into barracks. At Heals Range, Victoria's own Canadian Scottish Regiment will go under canvas.

Capt. Godfrey, Chief Of Staff Here, Transferred To Washington

Capt. V. S. Godfrey, O.B.E., chief of staff of the Pacific command for the past two years, is to be transferred to Washington, D.C., as a Canadian naval member combined staff. He will succeed Commodore R. I. Agnew, O.B.E., who will report to naval headquarters.

Succeeding Capt. Godfrey as chief of staff on the Pacific Coast will be Commander R. A. Webber, D.S.C., who at present is serving as executive officer on the cruiser, H.M.C.S. Uganda.

Capt. Godfrey will arrive at Washington Sept. 8 and will be promoted to the rank of acting commodore whilst holding this new appointment.

Born in London, Eng., in 1898, Capt. Godfrey was educated at Ashbury College, Ottawa, and the Royal Canadian Naval College, Halifax, which he entered at the age of 14.

He served through the Great War with the Royal Navy on H.M.S. Barham, and the submarine service, and afterwards on H.M.C.S. Aurora and Patricia. He received his first command, H.M.C.S. Thetis, in 1922.

After a further period of service with the Royal Navy on H.M.S. Benbow, he became naval intelligence officer, Esquimalt naval base. In 1932, as a lieutenant-commander, he was appointed in command of the destroyer H.M.C.S. Champlain. A spell of shore duty at Esquimalt was followed by an ordnance course in England, and appointment as inspector of naval ordnance, Halifax.

He commanded the auxiliary merchant cruiser H.M.C.S. Prince David in 1941, and as commanding officer, H.M.C.S. Prince Henry, he was senior officer of a group of landing ships (infantry) in the Normandy invasion of 1944. Prince Henry also took part in the invasion of southern France and later saw action in the fighting and evacuation of refugees in Greece.

CAPT. V. S. GODFREY, O.B.E.

Capt. Godfrey commanded Prince Henry all of this period and was twice mentioned in dispatches and has since received the U.S. Legion of Merit.

Returning from overseas, he served as chief of staff to Rear-Admiral Brodeur at Washington prior to his appointment as chief of staff of C.O.P.C. in 1945.

Raises Question Of Press Freedom

LAKE SUCCESS (CP)—Hector McNeil, British Minister of State, raised the question here whether any country which discriminates in news gathering in its territory should be a member of the United Nations.

In a vigorous speech to the United Nations Economic and Social Council Friday, McNeil, a former Glasgow newspaperman, advocated the right of everyone to collect news in the territory of every U.N. member without discrimination.

"When we find a nation not permitting these facilities," he said, "we have every reason to ask ourselves whether that country has a right to membership in the United Nations." Without a recorded vote, the Economic and Social Council decided to recommend to the U.N. Assembly that a proposed world conference on freedom of information and of the press be held in Geneva beginning next March 23.

Bevin Opposes Coalition Idea

DURHAM, Eng. (AP)—Foreign Secretary Bevin appealed to British working people today not to let the Socialist government fall because of Britain's economic difficulties.

"I know there is a lot of hope and feeling that a crisis will be brought about, that labor will be brought down and will have to go into a coalition government or in opposition," he told thousands of miners at a rally in this northern England town.

"This is the first Labor government you have got. Don't let it fall for the sake of generations to come."

The Foreign Secretary's appeal came after a series of suggestions in the Conservative press that the government might be forced into a coalition with the Conservatives to present a united front against a possible new industrial crisis during the coming winter.

Bevin hinted the government might ask miners to give up their new five-day week temporarily to speed national recovery and strengthen Britain's bargaining position in international conferences.

"I will never go back on my five-day week as long as I am in office," he said, "but I do say as a member of this government that I may have to ask you for a help out over a temporary period."

Thousands of the miners applauded.

To Probe Mysteries Of Mid-Atlantic Mountain Range

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP)—Bermuda is likely to be the first country in the world to learn something of the mysteries of the ocean bed between these coral islands and the Azores, where a mile or more below the surface stretches a mid-Atlantic range of undersea mountains in an almost continuous line from Iceland to the Antarctic.

The 146-foot research ketch Atlantis, with a group of U.S. scientists aboard, was on its way today to a point about 1,200 miles east of Bermuda, where work will be centered. The expedition, sponsored jointly by the National Geographic Society, Columbia University of New York and the Wood's Hole, Mass., Oceanographic Institution, will survey a 50,000-square-mile area about equidistant between Bermuda and the Azores. It will be gone about six weeks.

Equipped with the latest oceanographic devices, unobtainable before the war, the scientists will take pictures at a depth of three miles or more—never before attempted. Prof. Maurice Ewing of Columbia, director of the survey, and his students have perfected an undersea camera which will photograph the murky secrets of the domain of Atlantis.

From their research the party hopes to add to the knowledge of the earth's history. Little now is known about the geological structure of the ridge. One theory holds that it is a fragment left behind when the continents of North and South America separated from Europe and Africa.

The expedition, however, is not seeking any "lost continent," which legend says existed thousands of years ago. "The lost Atlantis has not entered into my thinking about our plans," Ewing said.

Such industrial solvents as gasoline, kerosene, petroleum, spirits and paint thinners should not be used as skin cleaners, warn health authorities. By their defatting action such substances can cause skin inflammation.

The Fruit of Unceasing Labor..

★ Between 1911 and 1935, a brief span of 25 years, extraordinary progress was made in public health. According to figures released by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, the duration of human life during this period was extended by almost 14 years. It is all the more remarkable in the light of the history of this period, which included the first World War, the worst epidemic in recent history, and America's most severe depression.

Many agencies have contributed to make Canada a more healthful place in which to live. Not the least of these are scientific medicine and pharmacy, which work unceasingly for better methods of prevention and treatment of disease.

President Repeals 175 Wartime Laws

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman today signed legislation repealing some 175 wartime and emergency laws—now or within one year—and putting stop-dates on veterans' benefits. The measure leaves in effect scores of other war-powers statutes.

Mr. Truman voiced hope for a speedy end of the remaining emergency statutes.

24 Seamen Held

VANCOUVER (CP)—Twenty-four Canadian seamen of the Ss. Lake Chilliwack were arrested here Friday on charges of "impeding progress" of the ship and released on $100 bail each.

The arrests were made as the men were paid off for the voyage, the charges alleging that the men "unlawfully combined to impede the progress" of the vessel in the Panama Canal port of Cristobal early this month.

Howe In London

LONDON (CP)—Reconstruction Minister C. D. Howe and Mrs. Howe arrived here by air Friday after a "pleasant journey" from Canada. The Canadian cabinet member is scheduled to arrive in London on the morning of the meeting of the Privy Council to approve the marriage of Princess Elizabeth to Lieut. Philip Mountbatten of the Royal Navy.

G.B.S., Polishing Play On 91st
Birthday, Scorns Congratulations

LONDON (AP)—George Bernard Shaw, 91 today, dismissed the occasion with snorts of mock exasperation and the assertion that few others could have survived so much "happy birthday rubbish."

"Birthday celebrations are for those who think they can afford to waste time," the sage of Ayot St. Lawrence, drowsy Hertfordshire hamlet, told his listeners.

"I've hardly recovered from the last birthday. It nearly killed me—and it would have killed most men."

"Whoever utters that word, 'birthday,' in my presence shall be set down as a man to be avoided."

Since early Friday the postman has been delivering a good deal of "Happy birthday rubbish"—letters and telegrams from all over the world.

Shaw said he would spend his birthday working as usual in his outdoor study.

Despite Shaw's birthday iconoclasm, he is obviously moved by the visit each year of a small girl, usually riding a pony, who bears greetings and good wishes from the village children. In these moments Shaw has been known to remark that the world is not entirely unregenerate.

At 91, Shaw perpetuates the myth of his dotage. "Leave me to die in peace," he declared recently—but the truth is he's polishing up a play, as yet untitled, for the famed Malvern Festival next year, and has ambitions to write further political, economic and sociological treatises.

Crerar Party Leaves For Japan
To Talk Trade, Discuss Treaty

OTTAWA (CP)—Back in an army uniform that bears seven rows of ribbons, Gen. H. D. G. Crerar headed for Japan and his first meeting with the United States' Gen. MacArthur today aboard an R.C.A.F. Liberator which is scheduled to make six stops—the first at Cheyenne, Wyoming—before it arrives in Tokyo a week hence.

The former overseas commander of the 1st Canadian Army is accompanied by four other Canadians.

Their mission in Japan, Prime Minister King has announced, will "facilitate the revival of trade with that part of the world," will gather information for Canada's role in the making of the Japanese peace treaty and will honor the Dominion's Pacific war dead.

Gen. Crerar, retired from the army but called temporarily for this job, is armed with an abundance of background material for the tasks ahead, including some of the Pacific campaign fought by Gen. MacArthur, his host, before he became Allied Chief in Japan.

WILL DISCUSS BATTLES

Before stepping into the lushly-furnished transport plane, the general told reporters he was looking ahead to meeting and talking with Gen. MacArthur about the war in the Pacific. He will also be a guest of Australian Gen. Robertson, British chief in Japan, whom he met 21 years ago when they were attending the Camberley Staff College together.

In San Francisco, the party will pick up Brig. Sherwood Lett of Vancouver. Their first stop is Cheyenne, Wyoming.

Their plane, captained by Flt. Lt. G. G. Wright, Tisdale, Sask., flew the Red Ensign above its silver body as it took off.

Flt. Lt. Wright, considered by the R.C.A.F. to be its top transport pilot, has a crew including Sqdn. Ldr. A. J. Mackie of Regina.

Blame Tired Mate
For Loss Of Ship

OTTAWA (CP)—A marine court of inquiry has found that the sinking of the steamship Emperor in Lake Superior last June was caused through negligence due to fatigue on the part of First Mate James Morrey, one of 12 men who lost their lives when the vessel went down.

The report, released Friday by Transport Minister Chevrier, said evidence disclosed that Morrey "did not keep proper watch" at his post on the bridge on the night of June 4, when the Emperor, loaded with iron ore out of Port Arthur, struck a reef and sank. Twenty-one of her crew were saved through quick response to an SOS by the U.S. Coast Guard vessel Kimball.

But while blaming the mate, the report strongly criticized "the system which prevailed, which required the first mate to be in charge of loading of the ship during the period when he should have been off duty," resulting in overtiredness and loss of sleep.

And in one of four recommendations the court urged an eight-hour day for all ships' officers.

The ill-fated vessel cleared Port Arthur at 10:55 p.m., on the night of June 3 with Capt. Eldon Walkinshaw in charge of the watch until midnight, when he was relieved by the first mate. It was during Morrey's six-hour watch between midnight and 6 a.m. that the ship struck the reef.

177 Cases Of Polio Reported In Britain

LONDON (Reuter)—Infantile paralysis cases in Great Britain reached a total of 177 during the week ended July 19—highest weekly total yet recorded—the Ministry of Health reported today. No figures were available for the current week.

Nineteen cases, with two deaths, were recorded in London during the week ended July 19. The total of deaths for the rest of Britain was not available.

A ministry official said the present figure of 177 would probably be exceeded during the next few weeks, but cases were widely scattered.

News Of The Island*All Sooke Day
Wednesday Links
Present With Past

Sooke—Eleventh annual All Sooke Day to be held Wednesday on the Sooke flats is "an attempt to link the present with the past and to feature by means of barbeque feasts, the life and customs of early Indian days and through many forms of sport and skill to present a picture of present-day logging and fishing activities," according to the All Sooke Day program which has just been published.

"What the historic pageants and annual sports days do for the provinces in eastern Canada and the celebrated Calgary Stampede does for the prairies, the celebrations of All Sooke Day are designed to do for people of Vancouver Island," the 20-page program stated in its outline of the day's activities.

The 1947 celebration will mark the first postwar All Sooke Day and residents of the area are brushing up on their Chinook for the great occasion.

"Kloosh Conway Chaco," meaning "Come all and welcome," will be the slogan.

Sooke Community Association, originators and sponsors of the event, has all the arrangements made, with the Sooke Harbor Fishing and Packing Company and J. H. Todd and Sons Ltd. donating more than one ton of red spring salmon.

Andre Robillard will be in charge of the cooking and serving of the famous salmon barbeque.

The novelty barbeque of beef, "Sooke style," as developed by the gold prospectors of Leech River in 1864, will be served in addition to clam chowder and the usual tea, coffee, sandwiches and cake.

Net proceeds from the event will be used to complete the community hall. All work in connection with the festivities is voluntary. The 1949 celebration of All Sooke Day, two years hence, will mark the 100th anniversary of the landing of the first white settler at Sooke, Capt. W. Colquhoun Grant.

New Mail Service For Island Proposed

A mail service between Victoria and principal Vancouver Island communities, rendered by a fleet of motor trucks devoted to carrying mail exclusively, has been proposed by C. W. Wilkinson, 1738 Ross Street, in a letter to R. W. Mayhew, M.P.

There would be seven routes, with mail delivered twice daily under Mr. Wilkinson's schedules. "Better service would be provided at all times, especially at peak periods such as holidays," Mr. Wilkinson said. "Mail service would not be subservient to and delayed by an excess of passenger traffic as well as competitive express business."

"By clearing mail twice a day, instead of once, as at present, incoming and outgoing mail would be speeded up."

Mr. Wilkinson said that although he proposed a better service, it could be obtained at a saving. The proposed schedule calls for service originating at Victoria, Nanaimo, Port Alberni, Youbou, Parksville and Campbell River, with the necessary transfers at Parksville and Duncan.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Infantile paralysis has claimed another two victims in Greater Vancouver area, Dr. Stewart Murray, medical health officer, reported Friday. One of the victims is from Richmond, the other from Burnaby.

China Wants Peace Talks At Shanghai

NANKING (AP)—The Chinese Foreign Office stated Friday China had agreed to participate at Washington in a preliminary conference on a Japanese peace.

(The U.S. State Department proposed recently that the preliminary conference be held in Washington or San Francisco, but Russia has objected.)

It added, however, that China would insist that the formal peace conference be held at Shanghai.

Thousands Greet
Two Ocean Queens

SOUTHAMPTON (Reuter)—Saluting with siren blasts, the world's two mightiest liners, the Queen Elizabeth and the Queen Mary, passed within half a mile of each other at sea Friday night for the first time in their history.

Thousands on shore and in small motor launches watched as the Elizabeth steamed out of Southampton and passed the waiting Queen Mary, which had been in the English Channel on trial after a refit.

Planes circled overhead as the ocean queens greeted each other with three short and three long blasts off the Isle of Wight.

The Queen Mary then sailed into the Southampton berth vacated by the other liner.

16 Japs Drowned

TOKYO (AP)—Sixteen persons were missing after an overland ferry had capsized in the swollen Yoshino River on Shikoku Island early Friday, the Kyodo news agency reported. Eighteen other passengers were rescued. The accident occurred near Tokushima, on the island's northeast coast.

Bottlenecks Block Empire Resources

LONDON (CP)—Development of vast new food resources within the Commonwealth which Britain would like to use to ease her dollar troubles and to alleviate the world food shortage is hampered by bottlenecks, informed sources said today.

Australia, South Africa and New Zealand are all prepared to welcome British emigrants, capital machinery and engineering skill to develop their resources. But delay is caused by:

1. Shipping is not available to carry immigrants to territories where they are needed.
2. Machinery needed for excavation and other heavy work is not to be had in the United Kingdom and purchases in the United States involve dollar expenditures that Britain and the non-dollar Dominions seek to keep down.
3. Although the British government is putting no obstacle in the way of would-be emigrants, skilled men employed in building and like occupations are sorely needed in Britain.

NOT A CASE OF SENTIMENT

NEWSPAPERS IN GREAT BRITAIN AS well as in Canada are manifesting considerable concern over the dwindling supply of American dollars held by the treasuries in Ottawa and London.

One does not require to be an expert economist to realize the troublesome aspects of this problem as reflected by the fact that Canada's adverse trade balance with the neighboring republic is growing at the rate of more than $800,000,000 a year. This explains why Finance Minister Abbott has limited the amount of American dollars which Canadian visitors to the United States may buy to take out of this country. The situation is all the more ironical because only two creditor nations emerged from the Second World War—the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

Our dilemma is intensified because our people are buying altogether too much in the American market in proportion to the amount of goods our friends across the way are purchasing from us.

In the case of Great Britain, on the other hand, more than $2,200,000,000 of the $3,750,000,000 loaned by the United States to the British government already has been spent. And because of the rise in price of many of the commodities Britain has bought—and still needs to buy—in the American market since the loan was negotiated in the latter part of 1945 the accommodation will have been exhausted long before the period in which it was designed to service British imports and accelerate her production for export. But not only is the exhaustion of British dollar credits troubling the Old and the New World. As the Times of London sees it, both Italy and France may even run out of their dollar reserves before the British economy experiences the real pinch in this regard. And the recent action of both Mexico and Argentina in restricting imports from their northern neighbors is another reason why the realists in Washington are being moved to issue new credits or to soften—particularly in the case of Great Britain—the terms on which existing credit concessions are operating.

In the light of what occurred in the economic realm after the First Great War, of course, our friends on the southern side of the 49th parallel are deeply apprehensive lest even a mild imitation of the policies of the late 20's should fasten upon American business a very paralyzing handicap. Students of the British economic scene, too, fully realize how seriously Britain regards her position as her Chancellor of the Exchequer contemplates the evaporation of the nation's supply of dollars.

But when a contemporary points out that although Rt. Hon. Herbert Morrison, in a recent discussion of the realities of this dollar shortage, "did not refer to it, Great Britain's position is not so sombre as it might appear on the surface," it betrays an extraordinary concept of circumstances with which every school of political thought in Great Britain is thoroughly familiar.

The newspaper we have in mind, moreover, adds to this fantasy when it further argues: "Even if the worst came to the worst, there is still a rich and powerful Empire to draw upon... Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and other Commonwealth lands have dollar credits of their own... If a crisis developed, this would be pooled as in the War they were."

This is the first intimation the reading public has had that the two southern Dominions, the Union of South Africa, and other Commonwealth lands have any dollar surpluses which they might pool with dwindling dollar credits which, for the moment only, Canada and Great Britain possess. Of all the Commonwealth nations, of course, Canada is the only one trading in the dollar bloc. The rest operate within the sterling orbit. This situation may be unfortunate; but it is none the less true.

THE PIPES ARE SKIRLING

WHETHER THEY BE ENTHUSIASTIC supporters of piping, or whether their appreciation of Scotland's national instrument increases in direct ratio to the distance from them at which it is played, Greater Victorians today honored the Scot in his presentation of some features of a native culture woven into the fabric of Canadian life. At the colorful Highland Games there were many attractions to draw the plaudits of the crowd.

As a spectacle, the annual event has gained an important place in the list of this community's festivities. But it represents more than an entertainment. It is a demonstration of the manner in which folkways can be preserved in a new country far distant from their origin and can contribute to the variety and color of a national life without creating an insularity damaging to a people's general cohesion. The event today offered the community a further reminder of the contribution of the Scot to the development of this part of the world in which he has played such a vital part and in which he upholds so staunchly the high ideals of good citizenship.

BACON AND ECONOMICS

ACCORDING TO INFORMATION FROM the federal Department of Agriculture, Canada expects to be producing as many hogs as she did in 1946—or more than 2,100,000. Rt. Hon. James G. Gardner, the head of this branch of the public service, alluded to the matter in the House of Commons a few days before prorogation. It was not without pleasure that other members from the agricultural constituencies of Canada took notice of the significance and implications of his announcement.

It is rather difficult for the layman to discuss that aspect of agricultural production which has to do with the basic provision of bacon for the British market. But, as we have emphasized in these columns many times in recent years, if this country desires to retain and expand its bacon market in the United Kingdom, it will be necessary for our producers to maintain high grade quality as well as guarantee continuity of supply.

It should not be necessary for us to emphasize the fundamental fact that the British importer would much prefer to do business with the nations of the Commonwealth than with foreign lands. But, after all, with about 48,000,000 Britons' mouths to feed, and with a meagre food supply with which to feed them at the moment, certainly it should be good business for the exporter of Canadian foodstuffs—in this case bacon—to look ahead and not content himself with the somewhat spurious export prosperity of these times.

A WARNING NOTE

THERE CAN BE LITTLE DOUBT ABOUT the discord abroad in the world today no matter in what field one makes his investigation. Whether the student of affairs keeps an ear to the international conference tables or listens to the labor forums and the courts; whether he invades the council rooms of the theologians, the marts of trade, the legislative chambers or the sportsmen's locker rooms, he will find jangling notes and lack of harmony making more difficult the peaceful progress of mankind.

It therefore comes as no surprise that another vast source of discord has been revealed. Mr. Jock Minefie, chairman of the American Society of Piano Technicians, has disclosed to the world that there are 16,000,000 pianos out of tune in the United States. He adds that there are only 3,000 piano tuners left to work on them.

We are not shocked by Mr. Minefie's revelation. In fact we had long suspected just such a situation, with an undue proportion of the instruments within earshot of radio studios. What does concern us, though, is the Society's chairman's disclosure that the art of the piano tuner is a dying one, that the fraternity of the men with the wrenches and the sensitive ears is on the wane.

There is a sense of tragic destiny in this apparent passing of an old and honored profession, a feeling of the relentless march of time and fate. The tuner, whose greatest performance so often was played in the shaded stillness of a deserted front parlor, his only audience a small and tongue-tied, urban-standing open-mouthed in the far corner, brought to his art a virtuosity and concentration which all too often has been lacking on the lime-lighted concert stage. His forte was the single note, played with intensity and zeal, and with all the expression which could be wrung from the lone straining string. Not for him were the applause of the multitude, the acclaim of the critics, the first-night and the mid-night suppers under the eye of an admiring public. Yet without his services, loyalty and competently given, the performances of the more gifted virtuosos would have been but jangling parodies of the art which together they served.

Mr. Minefie's warning is timely and serious. We would do well to heed its implications.

A PLACE OF SECRETS

MEASURED IN FEET AND INCHES, the cove is a narrow but deep indentation in the high, rocky ramparts past which the waves plunge when south-easters blow. Its mouth is little more than a gateway in a wall of stone. The sides of its channel rise sharply, to cut off sunlight except at high noon. And on the pebbled beach beneath its steep bank, the water lifts and falls with an easy respiration, untroubled by the lunging vigor of the seas outside.

It is a place of soft sounds, the tinkle of pebbles dislodged by a slow-moving tide, the gentle hiss of water receding. Yet though these murmurings are all but inaudible, they whisper secrets to stir the imagination. No one knows the history they tell. Perhaps they speak of some Indian canoe that thrust its prow into shore, its paddler exhausted from combat against the gale of a distant day. Perhaps they recount the story of more recent times, of sanctuary given the small boat, its engine faltering, that put in for safe anchorage. Or perhaps fresh gossip, is their topic, the small boy who rowed in from the open bay at morning, dreaming of pirate coves and treasure buried on the shore.

Little more than an exaggerated fissure in the native rock, it has, nevertheless, a friendliness born of its sheltering privacy, a homeliness imparted by its protective walls and the narrow opening of its entrance.

One way to end the scarcity of nurses: Stop using highly-trained technicians to do clean-up jobs that any moron could do as well.

UNRRA Dividend

By PETER EDSON from Washington—UNITED NATIONS RELIEF AND REHABILITATION Administration has officially gone out of business in every country except China, but the auditors as well as the memories linger on. The auditors will be around till the end of the year at least, trying to balance the books on the world's greatest experiment in international co-operation to relieve human suffering.

Whether that experiment is regarded as success or failure, the final audit should bring out in much clearer focus what was done with the money received from the sale of UNRRA supplies in the 17 war-torn nations.

THE GENERAL IMPRESSION is that all supplies were given away in a gigantic soup-kitchen operation. That's far from the truth. One of the original conditions of the UNRRA set-up was that, wherever possible, relief and rehabilitation supplies should be sold in the country that got them. The idea was to start the wheels of normal trade relations and exchange of goods rolling again.

Money received from the sale of UNRRA supplies was not, however, to be returned to the 31 countries that paid for them. Instead it was specified that the receipts should be spent in the country of sale for permanent reconstruction or further relief and rehabilitation. For every dollar put into UNRRA it was hoped that another dollar's worth of good might be done in the reinvestment turnover.

HOW CLOSE UNRRA came to achieving this goal, nobody knows. Of the $3.7 billion UNRRA fund, $2.9 billion went for supplies. The other $800 million covered administration, shipping and distribution costs.

What the $2.9 billion went for is known. Roughly $125 million went for food, $425 million for clothing, $125 million for medicine, $350 million for rehabilitation, $680 million for industrial rehabilitation and $120 million for special forms of relief. But what portion of each category was sold, and what part given away, UNRRA doesn't know. Reasons given are that UNRRA supplies are not all disposed of yet, and that the manner of distribution and form of reinvestment was left to each country. Their reports vary in completeness and accuracy.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA'S reports are probably in best shape. This country has worked out a complete two-year plan for reinvestment of the $265 million it hopes to receive from sale of UNRRA supplies to its people. Approximately a fourth of this sum will be sent for goods that will be consumed—food, medical supplies, clothing, seed, livestock to build up the meat supply.

But the other three-fourths will go into more or less permanent public works—power plants, gas, water and sewage systems, roads and railroads, telephone and telegraph lines. Public health will also get a big share of the benefit through reinvestment in hospitals, clinics, maternity and child care centres, sanitation services to rural districts.

In Italy, money received from resale of UNRRA supplies has been put into a special Lire Fund. It is expected to reach $165 million. This has been budgeted to go 40 per cent for housing, 50 per cent to health and welfare services, 10 per cent to agricultural rehabilitation.

POLAND GOT approximately $481 million worth of UNRRA aid. Most of it was given away as this country was one of the worst ravaged by war. Only $73 million was received from sales and the proceeds made available for reinvestment.

Most of this went to re-equip looted hospitals and clinics. Over $1 million was transferred to the International Children's Fund, World Health Organization and other voluntary organizations which took over when UNRRA pulled out of Warsaw June 30.

These are at best sketchy reports from only three of the 17 countries which UNRRA tried to aid. Reports from some of the others may never be available.

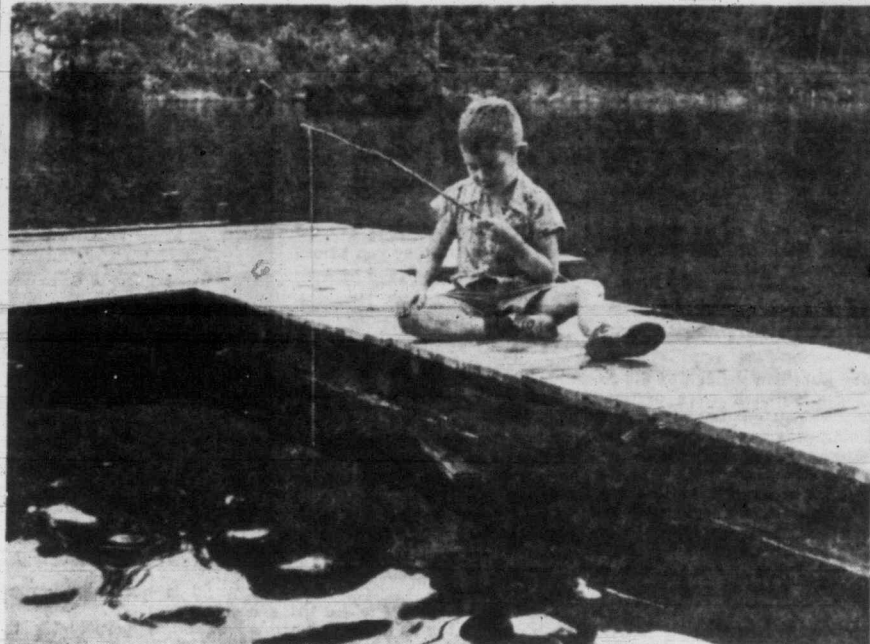

The point not to be lost sight of is that by this sale and reinvestment from a point of the supplies, UNRRA did more good than the mere filling of an empty belly. The result was that UNRRA was able to declare a dividend and toss it back into the business of war relief.

Raising Merry Help

PUBLIC OPINION, London
ABOUT TEN YEARS AGO the Eastern Daily Press reported that in Austria the police were empowered to fine people on the spot for such offences as dropping litter in the streets and for swearing audibly in public, which gave rise to the story of the man who was fined in the street for swearing and forthwith threw away his receipt, whereupon he was fined for throwing litter, whereupon he swore at the policeman and was fined again, and so on, according to the story. I think this is a great idea. Will you, whenever you get peeved and say "Tut-tut" or whatever is your pet expletive, fine yourself and send a postal order to the Secretary of The Royal Alexandra School, which cares for fatherless or motherless boys and girls. He will send you a receipt. Don't throw it away, but keep it until you have a hundred receipts, and then write and tell me and I'll give you a new suggestion. Meanwhile, go ahead, express your feelings and help the children. The address is: 3440, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C.4. My signature will be an inspiration to you.

HEL LANTHUS.

Just Fishin'

—A Market Study of the Younger Generation

In His Own Image

By JOSEPH L. RUTLEDGE

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE to believe that men have immortal souls, and still to think of them as masses."

So says J. B. Priestley in his book "Out of the People." What he means is simple enough. Whenever you take from man the right to be an individual and satisfy him with the right to be merely one of the herd, you have taken from him also the quality that made him "only a little lower than the angels."

In these present days too many people are putting carts before horses. They are devoting so much effort and thought towards getting what they want, that they have not the time or the inclination to make certain what they really is that they do want, or why they want it. They are seizing some political formula because it seems to satisfy some momentary views or momentary prejudices. They are taking drastic action to achieve some immediate end. All too often, they overlook entirely the setting up of a profit and loss account that is simply careful thinking on the essential issues. What do I gain? What do I lose?

For instance. It is a fairly popular pose of the moment to assume a leftist attitude. It seems to many that there is a suggestion of deep thinking and of broadmindedness in such a pose; the suggestion of an active social conscience. Because these certain people don't like all they see in the system under which they live, they plan to better matters by the simple, if illogical, method of merely putting the machinery in reverse. Because our democracy, with its emphasis on the individual, does not have all the virtues, they turn to Russia, where the individual is almost nothing, and to Communism, with its emphasis on the mass, as a possible doctrine for a new age.

But people who have been closer to this doctrine have not been so impressed. Samuel Wells, a correspondent who knows Russia intimately, and writes of it with compassion, speaks of Russia's two stories: "the story of her great, warm people, and the story of the cold bureaucracy of lies and murder that grips the people's lives. You can't know a jail," as Mr. Wells says, "without having seen the prisoners."

That "cold bureaucracy" is a bureaucracy of Russian people. It is what happens when people cease to demand their individual status and permit their fortunes to fall into the hands of the most determined and ruthless of their fellow citizens. It is what happens when people permit themselves to be thought of and guided and governed as masses. You can't have Communism and have democracy too. If you want the one, you must forego the other. You can't have regimented lives and freedom with them. You can't have Moscow government and the right to go where you want, to think as you please, and say what you will. We don't want a society where people's lives are arranged for them, even for their own so-called good. We want to see people directing their own lives in a pattern of their own deciding, and so recreating themselves as individuals bearing the image of God.

Recovery Without Russia

By JAMES THRASHER from New York

NOT SINCE the war has the world seen anything in the field of international relations like the Paris conference on European economic recovery. The conference began in a spirit of gravity, as well it might. But there was also evident a spirit of friendliness and a unanimity of purpose that have been absent too long.

The reason for this was clearly evident—Russia, with her tactics of opposition, obstruction, delay and general trouble-making. Without a Soviet delegation, the 16 governments present were able to make a start at doing a job which they all agreed must be done.

The conference is not a truly European meeting without Russia and her satellites. Considerable industry and much agricultural land which are part of the European economic picture do not figure in the Paris plans. But one could almost get a feeling of relief from reading reports of the conference. Russia had dropped the other shoe. Despite the serious aspects of her withdrawal, the air seemed clearer now that the threatened east-west split had become fact.

The so-called Molotov plan has some participants who are obviously reluctant. The Marshall plan has the hearty co-operation of 15 western European nations and Turkey. These nations, at Paris, have denied any threat to individual sovereignty. They have left the door open for Russia and other countries to come in. They have agreed on a program of self-help to supplement American assistance. They have not overlooked the United Nations in their planning.

RESPONSIBILITIES

Russia's ban on normal relations between these Baltic and Balkan nations and their non-Communist neighbors will not assist Europe's recovery. Neither will the paralysis of Germany, if it continues much longer. At the same time the Soviet Union has acquired some economic responsibilities along with its political successes.

Russia is economically weaker than in 1939. Yet if she denies her satellites assistance from the United States and the rest of Europe, she will have to make it up to them out of her own production. The new five-year trade treaty with Czechoslovakia is an indication of what Russia intends to do—promising and delivering are two quite different things.

All this gives the United States a political advantage to match Russia's similar advantage in the east. But here again there are economic problems. In America's case, too, promising and delivering are not the same things. As yet the United States does not know how much help it can afford to give. Nor is there assurance that a bipartisan foreign economic policy will back up the bipartisan political support of the Marshall plan and turn promises into actualities.

Until these two questions are settled there is no room for blithe assurance that non-Communist Europe can recover and grow strong without Russia.

They Have Filled Tea Pots For 240 Years

London, Calling

THERE HAS ALWAYS BEEN something of a romance about tea, but I do not think you could ever feel it more strongly than in a little old-fashioned shop in the Strand, opposite the bomb-shattered ruin of St. Clement Dane's church.

Two white pillars support a miniature gable over the door, flanked on either side by little figures of an Indian and a Chinese, and, inside, the rich smell of roasted coffee and the delicate fragrance of fine teas fill the shop.

EARLY ORIGIN

And well they may, for it is 240 years since coffee and tea were first sold here, and they are still being sold today by the descendants—bearing the same name—of the man who first opened the shop, in the reign of Queen Anne. Tea-men to Royalty for nearly two-and-a-half centuries; that is the proud legend of this little shop, and over its door, above the Indian and the Chinese looking pensively down the Strand, are the names and coats-of-arms of some of the royal people it has supplied throughout their reigns.

It began as a coffee-house, at the time when coffee-houses were fashionable resorts, and the Strand was one of the most fashionable parts of London. When men in ruffles, and great wigs, and high-heeled shoes, liked to gather over their hand-les, pewter coffee-cups in a place like this, and silt the scandal, and the politics, and the intrigues of the day; when fine ladies, sedding down the Strand in their bobbing chairs, liked to rap the window sharply with a fan, and bid the bearers set them down to buy a packet of that new luxury, tea, at 24 shillings the pound.

When Hitler's bombs rained down on the Strand in 1941, they caught the back of the shop and left the front unharmed. And as you choose your blend today, you can sit on one of the old chairs that was saved from the wreck, age—maybe the one on which Christopher Wren, who helped his father build St. Paul's, used to wait when he came to order the half-pounds of pekoe tea which are itemized against his name in the firm's old ledgers.

From being just a fashionable resort of Londoners, the shop began to send its teas and coffees, first to people all over England by lumbering stage-coach—and then abroad. In 1760, people in Boston and Albany, soldiers quartered in Canada, were writing to the Strand for tea, and in 1796, a member of the London family visiting America was presented to General Washington.

The sedan-chair and the family coach, the post-chaise and the carriage-and-pair have, one after another, set down customers at the white-pillared door to buy tea. And now that the red London buses and swift taxis hurry along the Strand, instead, the shop is still busy with customers, and still sending its choice blends out to people all over the world.

Global Survey

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

A.P. Foreign Affairs Analyst

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S new special envoy, Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, has got into action on his old stamping grounds in China to carry out a fact-finding mission which is calculated to provide Washington with material for an overhauling of its policy of assistance for this important but war-battered member of the big five.

Inflation is fantastic and the economy of the country is wrecked. The Nationalist government at Nanking is trying to ride a whirlwind.

The civil war is producing widespread and bloody fighting. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's fresh offensive to try to deliver a knock-out blow to the Red armies finds the Communists not only holding their own but on the initiative generally, with Manchuria and great reaches of northern China largely in their hands. And Nanking says that the Chinese Reds are receiving aid from the Russians.

As one surveys this chaos, and the elements which are contributing to it, there would seem to be only one way out for Chiang Kai-shek and his government, and it is this:

1. To fling enough military force against the Communist armies to cripple them and hold them down, and then—

2. To do a thorough job of house-cleaning in the Nanking government and inaugurate sweeping reforms attractive enough to win back that portion of the Chinese population which has forsaken Nanking to chase Communist rainbows.

Of these two essentials, the first obviously presents an obstacle which may be unsurmountable. The financing of an all-out war by Chiang's armies against the Chinese Communists would run into countless billions of dollars, a sum which would stagger the imagination of the only nation in the world capable of producing it—the United States.

Replying to a question in the House on the advertising of Canadian cheese, the Hon. Ernest Bertrand said:

"Every Canadian cheddar cheese weighing more than 60 pounds, now exported, bears the word, Canada, 38 times."

An improvement of course, would be if the cheese, when opened, could be trained to stand up and sing O Canada.

LACK OF INTEREST

National Health Magazine

Politics is really the science of building an ideal community, and this is the business of both men and women in and out of Parliament. Thousands of men are willing and anxious to help women achieve the position where they will fight side by side with their brothers and husbands, fathers and sons, for a better world. The tragedy of it is, however, that in Canada women themselves have shown insufficient interest in the general objective of achieving political responsibility. The question of women's rights in industry and business is bound up with this problem.

FEARED NORWAY

Norway Digest

Hitherto secret records documenting Hitler's meetings with the German Naval Command during 1943 now reveal that "Der Fuehrer" was haunted by the fear of an Allied attack through Norway. "Norway is the fatal zone of this war," he prophesied on numerous occasions. Following consultations with the German Naval Staff on January 22, 1942, he outlined three counter measures to hinder an eventual Norway landing: moving the bulk of the German fleet to Norwegian waters, appointing Field Marshal von Kesselring as top commander in Norway, and forcing a revision of British-American plans. For some unknown reason, the two last points were never carried out, but a considerable part of the German fleet was sent to Norway. The documents clearly indicate that the dramatic escape of the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen from Brest, France, through the Channel was a direct result of Hitler's wish to strengthen the Norwegian garrison.

Argue Use Of Revenue From Victoria's Parking Meters

With several heated arguments on contentious points, and after two hours' debate, the City Council at a special meeting Friday gave first reading to the by-law which authorizes installation of 800 parking meters on city streets and named the 14 streets on which they will be placed.

Chief of Police J. A. McLellan suggested that any extra funds earned by the meters, once expenses of their operation have been met, should be placed in a special fund for traffic movements, and stressed this was done in other cities, even Vancouver.

Acting Mayor Edward Williams agreed this was a good idea, but Ald. R. A. C. Dewar wanted to include road improvements in the special fund.

Chief McLellan protested that Victoria is a long way behind in traffic control signals and every time he made a recommendation to the City Council the big argument was where to find the money.

Acting Mayor Williams said the money would be safe enough in the general fund, while Ald. J. D. Hunter opposed having it segregated until it was seen how much money would be obtained. Ald. F. G. Mulliner expressed doubts as to what would happen if it were not earmarked. "If it goes into the general pot it is lost," he commented.
 Finally the money was left in the general revenue fund and the police chief was assured that when he wanted more traffic signals the amount earned by parking meters would be taken into consideration.

CURB MARKINGS

In the by-law it is set out that the metered zones are to be clearly earmarked by the city engineer, which immediately started an argument as to how far the markings should extend from the curb and how extensive they should be. The aldermen were all agreed that the marks should extend from the curb in a "T" shape to show the motorist clearly where he should park. City Solicitor A. J. Patton pointed out this would mean a greater maintenance problem and might cause difficulty in getting convictions.

Chief McLellan, who favored the larger markings, complained, "Up to now we've always been told we're short of paint around here. Surely to heaven we can get enough money from these parking meters so we can get a bit of paint to maintain the lines."

ONE-HOUR PARKING

Metered areas will all become one-hour parking zones, and it is contrary to the law for a motorist to park longer than one hour in any one spot, regardless of the coins he deposits in the meter. The rates are five cents an hour, or one cent for every 12 minutes, and Ald. Hunter emphasized that the motorist must turn the handle after each coin is deposited, or the time does not register.

Streets on which the meters are being placed are as follows, both sides of the street being metered in all cases, except where loading zones or "no parking" areas are already established: Langley Street from Yates to Broughton Street; Government Street from Cormorant to Humboldt Street; Broad Street from Cormorant to Broughton Street; Gordon Street from Broughton to Courtney Street; Douglas Street from Herald to Humboldt Street.

View Street from Government to Blanshard Street; Bastion Street from Wharf to Government Street; Fort Street from

No Longer Share In Bridge Costs

B.C. Electric Railway Company served notice on Friday's special City Council meeting that it will no longer be responsible for a share of the maintenance costs of Point Ellice Bridge, as it has discontinued running street cars on the structure, and will never use the tracks again.

City Solicitor A. J. Patton explained to the council that since 1922 the B.C.E.R. has paid 25 per cent of all maintenance costs on the bridge, which gave it the privilege of running the street car tracks across it.

The company has asked for the final bill for repairs up to June, 1947.

without charge on Sundays and holidays, and after 6 p.m. or before 8 a.m. Taxicab operators may load and unload passengers, if they don't take longer than two minutes.

Also commercial vehicles may park for loading or unloading for 15 minutes without charge. Trailers are not permitted in the parking areas at all.

Property Owner Complains Premises Damaged By Games

Threat of legal action was served on Friday's special City Council meeting unless something was done to alleviate the nuisance incident to ball games at Athletic Park, by Mrs. Margaret Joyce, 1036 Caledonia Ave.

Mrs. Joyce complained that balls landing on her premises from the ball games broke windows and a skylight and damaged the roof. She also complained about beer and whisky bottles and other refuse being tossed into her yard by ball game spectators. She claimed that the presence of such things was causing her property to depreciate in value.

Ald. H. M. Diggon suggested the matter be referred to the Police Commission and the city solicitor, and immediately Ald. B. J. Gadsden, who is also a police commissioner, protested that the police could not regulate the flight of balls in a ball game.

"Whisky bottles are not usually used in a baseball game," Ald. Diggon testily replied.

Oak Bay Firemen To Fix Toys For Solarium Kiddies

Christmas in July might be the theme of a plan proposed by members of the Oak Bay Fire Department and accepted by the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

The firemen wishing to do something for the children at the Solarium, suggested they use their leisure time repairing, fixing and putting into "like-new" condition, all types of old toys.

The toys would then be given to the children at the Solarium at Christmas time to help them have fun in their play hours.

The public has been asked to donate all types of used and broken toys, including dolls, trucks, carts, guns, wheelbarrows, games, in fact anything in the children's toy and hobby line. The toys are to be left at the Oak Bay Fire Hall and the firemen will then start to work repairing, painting and fixing them.

All toys fixed but which are over the quota needed for the Solarium will be put on sale a short time before Christmas, with the proceeds to be given to the Solarium for operating expenses.

Special Displays Mark Closing Of Oak Bay Playgrounds

With the Oak Bay playground program drawing to a close next week, many special events have been arranged by the committee in charge to give parents and friends of the children registered at the parks an opportunity to witness activities carried on in the summer program.

Mrs. L. J. Clark, supervisor and Miss Joan Challender, assistant supervisor, have arranged a special display at Willows Park, Monday at 7. Included in the program will be performances of a rhythm band, folk dances, tumbling, pyramids, singing games, boxing, softball and volleyball. Eric Greville-Jones, chairman of the Oak Bay playground committee, will act as master of ceremonies.

Tuesday, the 216 children registered at Willows Beach are invited to games and a picnic.

Windsor Park will be the scene of a special demonstration Tuesday at 7 with 149 children taking part. A picnic and games will be held at noon Wednesday.

Capt. E. G. Beaumont put his launch at the disposal of a number of the Oak Bay children Wednesday, taking them on a short cruise.

City Council Briefs

The Greater Victoria School Board will be asked to consult with the public works committee concerning any street or road work to be done in connection with the school building program. It was decided at Friday's special meeting of the council, Ald. J. D. Hunter, public works chairman, complained that the Myrtle Street extension which will be needed for Lansdowne Junior High School "is not a small project."

Conversion of Tyee camp huts into emergency shelter has already started, Lands Commissioner M. K. Crockett reported to Friday's special meeting of the City Council. The lot-clearing gang will clean off long dry grass and weeds which are a fire hazard on the premises.

The City Council rejected all tenders for the painting of the front of the market building and fire hall and decided to do no painting work this year.

The federal government has paid the city $632 to have wire and other materials cleaned off the Holland Point waterfront property which was recently leased to the city for park purposes, Ald. D. D. McTavish, parks committee chairman, reported to the City Council.

Encephalomyelitis Strikes B.C. Horses

With two cases of encephalomyelitis reported in the Kamloops district, agricultural department livestock branch officials are expecting "another epidemic of the disease this year."

Similar to poliomyelitis in humans, the disease became widespread in the interior last year and found its way to previously-uninfected areas.

Officials warn that from now to September is the worst period and urge preventive measures which can be taken against the disease, which, unlike the human disease, can be completely controlled if available vaccines are used each year.

Need New Road On Myrtle Street For Schools Program

Only services the city will be asked to provide in the school building program will be the construction of approximately 170 feet of the undeveloped portion of Myrtle Street from Shelbourne to Richmond Avenue, R. H. Smith, school board superintendent of buildings and grounds, informed the City Council Friday.

He said the three new schools to be built within the city, Victoria high technical, Topaz Ave. junior high, and Macdonald Park primary school, will be adequately serviced by the existing roads and services.

The junior high school on Lansdowne Road in Saanich, will require the extension of Myrtle Street from Shelbourne to Richmond Avenue. In the negotiation for the purchase of the site, Mr. Smith explained, the school board made provision for the building of the part of Myrtle Street extension within Saanich at the expense of the Department of Veterans' Affairs.

The Victoria Nursing Home would welcome donations of fruit and vegetables for patients, F. E. Winslow, chairman of the board of directors, said following a meeting of the board Thursday.

Visitors Welcome At Park Nursery

Visitors are welcomed to the nursery and greenhouse at Beacon Hill Park, Ald. D. D. McTavish, chairman of the parks committee, said today.

At the present time the beautiful collection of begonias is at its best, he said, while all summer flowers are at the peak of their bloom.

In particular sweet peas, snapdragons and gladioli are very colorful.

Horace Lindsey, foreman of the nursery, will show visitors around, Ald. McTavish said.

Newlyweds Motor To Los Angeles

En route to Los Angeles by motor are Albert Lee and his bride, the former Miss Rose Elizabeth Chan, who were married Thursday at 3, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. John Chan, 2003 Quadra Street.

Baskets of multi-colored gladioli were arranged in the window alcove, decked with pink and white satin ribbons, where the bride and groom repeated their vows before Rev. J. L. W. McLean.

Heavy white crepe fashioned the wedding gown designed by the bride, with long full sleeves fitted at the wrists, gathered bodice, and full skirt softly draped. A crystal-beaded coronet held her full-length veil and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and gardenias. A jade necklace was her only jewelry. Mrs. Chan gave her daughter in marriage.

Crepe gowns of salmon pink and of blue, styled similarly to that of the bridal model, were worn by sisters of the bride, Miss Doris Chan and Miss Myrtle Chan. Beaded-coronets held their shoulder veils and they carried bouquets of gardenias and roses.

Little Ginny Lee, cousin of the bride from San Francisco, was a dainty flower-girl in her full-skirted gown of mauve crepe, with ruffled, off-the-shoulder neckline. She carried a Colonial bouquet.

The groom, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Kan Bu Lee of Victoria, was attended by Henry Chung, James Chan, brother of the bride, was usher.

At the reception which followed, the bride and groom cut a three-tier wedding cake.

The bride changed to a three-piece ensemble of grey gabardine, with black accessories and corsage bouquet of orchids for the wedding trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee will return to Victoria to take on residence on Quadra Street.

Joan Garrard, John Stewart Wed Today At St. George's

St. George's Church was the scene of a quiet wedding today at 3, when marriage vows were exchanged by Miss Joan Daphne Garrard, eldest daughter of Mrs. W. A. B. Garrard, 626 Foul Bay Road, and the late Lt.-Cmdr. Garrard, and John F. Stewart, Regina, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Stewart, Dysart, Sask.

White gladioli and tall white candles formed an effective setting for the rites heard by Rev. William Hills.

Richard Garrard, Vancouver, gave his sister in marriage. Crisp white accessories and off-the-face floral hat with navy bow added importance to the bride's fashionable suit of blue gabardine, designed with peplum jacket and pencil slim skirt. Her corsage bouquet was of gardenias and stephanotis.

Gardenias were also worn by the bride's sister, Mrs. Robert Jeune, as bridal attendant. Her suit of gabardine, smartly tailored, was of cloud blue, and she wore white accessories and white hat, to complete her ensemble.

Robert Jeune was groomsmen. Ushering guests to their seats were Reginald Reid and William Luney.

Red gladioli were attractively arranged at the home of the bride's mother, where a reception was held. Mrs. Garrard assisted in receiving guests. Swanson decorated the bride's table where the three-tier cake, flanked by white candles, was centred. The toast to the bride was given by Cmdr. W. H. Leggett.

Seattle and Vancouver are on the honeymoon agenda of the bridal couple. They will return to the city until September and will then leave for Vancouver, where the groom will attend University of B.C.

For traveling, the bride donned a blue gabardine coat over her wedding ensemble.

Mrs. William Wakeham was matron of honor, in a suit of powder blue with which she wore black plastic accessories and corsage bouquet of pink carnations.

Miracle Unites Russian Sisters After 36 Years

Madame Marie Zakrejevsky and Mrs. Natalie Nikitin.

MARGUERITE HANCOCK
"It is only a miracle that we are united after 36 years in which we didn't know whether the other was alive or dead," states Madame Marie Zakrejevsky as she gazes fondly at her sister, Mrs. Natalie Nikitin of Los Angeles.

The Russian-born sisters, with their creamy complexions, laughing blue eyes, and becoming grey hair are together for three weeks in which they are spending most of the time reminiscing of days gone by.

These charming women, both of whom were renowned in operatic circles in Europe, possess a highly developed sense of humor, evident as they tease one another about some almost forgotten incident in their earlier life.

SEPARATED

The sisters were first separated when Madame Zakrejevsky left her childhood home in Vilna, Russia, to live in Siberia with her husband, and Mrs. Nikitin traveled to Italy where she spent six years studying and singing. Mrs. Nikitin returned to Russia to sing at Petrograd and later won fame in operas in all parts of Europe singing with such renowned artists as Caruso, Feodor Chaliapin, and Battistini. She appeared in 49 operas, and made many recordings and later was prima donna with the Imperial Opera at Petrograd.

While Mrs. Nikitin was in Petrograd, Madame Zakrejevsky was in Italy. After five years she too returned to Russia to sing at Moscow.

"Then came the Russian revolution," stated Mrs. Nikitin. "Leaving all my possessions I escaped to Finland," she explained, "and after trying to trace my sister with no results, I came to America, where I have lived for the past 13 years."

Madame Zakrejevsky fled to safety in Siberia. She, too, tried every means she knew to locate her sister.

"The Bolsheviks came to Siberia," Madame Zakrejevsky stated, "her blue eyes saddened, and with my family, I left for Manchuria."

Her love of music ever foremost in her mind, Madame began teaching singing.

It was then that fate intervened, using music, the great love of both sisters, as its tool. Mrs. Nikitin, who believed she would never again see her sister, was living in Los Angeles, and singing with a company there.

"One day I noticed a young student watching me," she said, "her accented words and deep-toned voice making pleasing combination. After I'd finished my song, I asked the student why she had been watching me, and she told me that I reminded her very much of her singing teacher in China. I asked for her teacher's name, and her answer brought unbelievable happiness to me. Yes, it was my sister!"

"Immediately I began a letter to her and I remember exactly the words I used, 'My dear, you have never had a letter from another world, but this will seem as one to you.'"

"And it did, too," broke in Madame Zakrejevsky. "I had thought my sister perished in the revolution."

MEET AGAIN

It was a year later, in 1940, that Madame arrived in Los Angeles to see her sister.

"What a wonderful time we had," she says, with her expressive gestures of her artistic hands.

"Yes," added Mrs. Nikitin, "we didn't sleep for three nights, catching up on events."

Their faces glowed as they reminisced. "We only had a short time together, but every minute of it was wonderful."

Madame Zakrejevsky came to Victoria, with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Golding, and grandsons, Robert and Richard, to make her home. Once again she decided to teach, and through the interest she had taken in her pupils, has made countless numbers of friends. After the war she visited England and only returned six months ago.

Mrs. Nikitin is staying with her sister at the Golding residence, on Victoria Avenue and will return to her home in Los Angeles next week. She appeared in the motion picture "Song of Russia," and has acted in several other moving pictures.

Friends Honor Mrs. A. V. Sandy

Mrs. A. V. "Mickey" Sandy, who is to be married to Mr. A. L. "Les" Gropp, formerly of San Francisco, on Aug. 1 was honored Friday at Hickman-Tye Hardware Co. Ltd., where she has been employed for several years when L. H. Noble, secretary-treasurer of the firm presented her with a silver tea service and corsage bouquet of gardenias and violas from the assembled staff.

On behalf of the firm and directors, Mr. A. E. Taylor presented Mrs. Sandy with a trill lamp.

Those Who Forsake Wisdom Come To Ruin

Scripture: Proverb 1:1-5; 3:13-18; 9:9-10; James 1:5

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.
It is one thing to praise and commend wisdom, but quite another thing to practice it. And the most unwise thing that can happen is to abandon wisdom once you have found it.

This is forcefully illustrated in the history of King Solomon, reputedly the author of the Book of Proverbs, and reputedly "the wisest man who ever lived."

At least two great and noble incidents are recorded of Solomon, and if all his life and action had been in accordance with these he would surely have deserved the fullest of his reputation for wisdom.

The one incident was the dream, recorded in I Kings 3:5-12, in which, asked to choose what he desired from the Lord, he spoke in deep humility and asked above all things for an understanding heart to exercise good judgement, and rule his people well.

But the other understanding incident was his prayer at the dedication of the Temple, recorded in I Kings 8, and among the noblest and most beautiful things in the entire literature of religion.

Perhaps, like some addresses of other kings and rulers, it was written for him by some religious leader of saintly spirit and prophetic insight. But by delivering it Solomon made it his own, and if he had continued in the letter and spirit of that prayer he might have gone down to history as famous for his goodness and wisdom as he is for the outward splendor and magnificence of his reign.

Instead Solomon took to himself many wives. Not content with the building of the Temple, he built for himself. In a great palace he surrounded himself with riches and luxury for which the people paid in oppressive taxes; bearing it all while Solomon lived and the magnificence

Metropolitan Preacher

Rev. Dr. Willard Brewster, one of Canada's outstanding preachers, opened his summer ministry at Metropolitan United Church last Sunday. He will be there for the next five Sundays, while Rev. Dr. A. E. Whitehouse is on his holidays.

Dr. Brewster who for some years preached in Vancouver, at present is pastor of St. George's United Church, Toronto.

Continued, but with the result of rebellion, and division of the kingdom when Rehoboam, his son, succeeded him.

Thus it was that beneath the expansion, and safety, and apparently flourishing prosperity of the kingdom of Israel under Solomon were the seeds of oppression.

Solomon in the early part of his career stands as a fine example and an exhortation to wisdom. But in the latter part he stands as a solemn warning of what happens even a great man when he departs from wisdom.

'Wings Over Jordan' Coming To York

Not only does the "Wings Over Jordan" chorus bring spiritual comfort and joy to all who have heard it but this choir, which will be presented at York Theatre stage next Wednesday and Thursday by arrangements made with the International Artists' Corporation of New York, also has given generously of its time and money to help those in need.

"Wings Over Jordan," under the guidance of Rev. Glynn T. Settle, has collected more than $1,000,000 for worthy relief and religious causes and has, in addition to appearing at many benefits, organized a spiritual preservation fund, which is used to preserve the negro spirituals and extend their development.

New Plaza Movie Stars Saunders

The battle between George Saunders and the fair sex is on the brink of a new and heated round. Saunders recently completed the suave title role in the film adaptation of Guy de Maupassant's spicy, romantic story, "The Private Affairs of Bel Ami," which David Loew and Albert Lewin produced for United Artists release. The picture is scheduled to open Monday at the Plaza Theatre.

De Maupassant's pithiest witticisms directed at the so-called "weaker sex" have all been pointed up in the script.

Producer Lewin quotes these barbed lines from some typical Saunders' conversations in the film:

"To educate a woman is like leaving a razor where a monkey can find it."

"A woman is an intelligent toy which will pick itself up if you should let it fall."

"Any man sincerely in love with a woman will find a way to make her wretched."

"All women take to men who have the appearance of wickedness."

"To talk of love is to make love."

ROYAL THEATRE

"Miracle on 34th Street" now at the Royal Theatre has the gaiety of a holiday party with plenty of romance, laughter and sentiment to make all who see it glow with the feeling that there still are a lot of wholesome people left in this troubled world of ours.

Maureen O'Hara, as Doris Walker, a department store executive, and John Payne, a young lawyer, who are even more charming than they were in "Sentimental Journey," provide the romance, and Edmund Gwenn, one of the screen's finest character actors, motivates this heart-warming love story with his unusual characterization of Kris Kringle.

DOMINION THEATRE

"Romance is a great thing, especially in the cinema," Colin Campbell said reflectively as he

Paralyzed Veteran Drives Own Car

Sam Keeble, of Wilson Motors, hands Lieut. Robert Hall the keys to his new automobile.

Lieut. Robert Charles Hall, 2750 Gorworth Avenue, is one war veteran who refuses to allow a severe handicap deter him from carrying out his postwar plans.

Lieut. Hall is completely paralyzed from the chest down as a result of wounds received from machine gun fire while serving with the Queen's Own Cameron Regiment in Normandy, in August, 1944.

An electrician by trade, Lieut. Hall now is studying electrical engineering under the Department of Veterans' Affairs, while awaiting his discharge from the Veterans' Hospital here. He expects to leave the hospital some time next week.

Resigned to the fact that he will probably never walk again, let alone recover the use of the lower part of his body, Lieut.

climbed from the seat of his shiny hansom cab and walked toward his dressing room.

The scene was the Warner Bros. set of "Love and Learn," the Jack Carson-Bob Hutton-Martha Vickers-Janis Page starrer now at the Dominion Theatre, and Colin was completing his job of driving Martha Vickers and Bob Hutton through Central Park on a warm summer's eve. The two kisses for the first time in Mr. Campbell's hansom and are about to embrace again when he paternally advises them that it is time to go home.

"Sitting on that hansom seat is like having a perch above the universe," said the wizened little Englishman. "I've watched Hollywood's greatest lovers embrace in my cabs, and it never fails to make me feel like a watchful guardian."

OAK BAY THEATRE

Van Johnson is certainly following in the footsteps of the screen idols of the past. Now he's even wearing their clothes!

The popular young star doesn't own a tuxedo. As there has been an epidemic of formal parties lately, Johnson, who has been too busy on his new musical, "No Leave, No Love," now being shown on the Oak Bay screen, to spend any time with a tailor, has been borrowing from the M-G-M wardrobe department.

Last week-end he received a last-minute invitation, called the studio and was told the tux he'd borrowed before was in use.

"Send anything that will fit," he asked.

Wardrobe did. The label on the suit read—"John Gilbert."

Hall has obtained an automobile, specially equipped with certain features which enable him to operate the vehicle entirely by hand.

The car, a 1947 Oldsmobile, is equipped with "hydra-matic" drive which eliminates the use of the clutch pedal. The gear shift lever is at the top of the steering column on the right hand side. The throttle and an air controlled booster brake are controlled by a single lever mounted on the left hand side of the steering column.

With Lieut. Hall unable to make hand signals because by law he is required to keep one hand on the steering wheel and the other on the combined throttle and brake lever, it was necessary to provide some other means of denoting turn signals. This is done by flashing lights on the rear of the vehicle, controlled by a switch near the top of the column just below the steering wheel itself.

All other controls can be operated manually including the dimmer switch, which has been moved from the floor to the steering column.

ENTERS CAR UNAIDED

Lieut. Hall is able to enter the vehicle unaided, and to get about with his new means of transportation only needs someone to take care of his wheel chair once he has lifted himself into the driver's seat.

He is one of 160 such veterans in Canada who belong to the Canadian Paraplegic Association, and who are being taught through the Department of Veterans' Affairs to overcome their seemingly impossible handicaps and return to executive and business positions in civil life.

Veterans in Shaughnessy Military Hospital, Vancouver, afflicted as Lieut. Hall with partial paralysis, are taught to drive in a car equipped with all manual controls. Lieut. Hall has driven this automobile, but he will have to pass a B.C. drivers' examination before he will be allowed to handle it alone.

Publishers Seek York Film Story

Author Raymond Chandler is mulling various publication offers for his screen-play, "The Blue Dahlia," Paramount mystery-shocker with Alan Ladd, Veronica Lake and William Bendix starred, which arrives Sunday midnight at the York Theatre.

Chandler holds publication rights to the property, first work he has written expressly for the screen and his first story to be prepared in script form only.

The writer has already had an offer by the Saturday Evening Post to run the story in serial form.

If he publishes "The Blue Dahlia" in either the book or magazine medium, Chandler will have to adapt the yarn from screenplay form.

YORK THEATRE

His arms wanted to hold her... yet his hands had to still her mocking laughter forever! "Hangover Square," crime's most shocking story, the story of a man's fury unleashed by a woman's scorn, is currently at the York Theatre.

Starred in the 20th Century-Fox thriller are Laird Cregar, Linda Darnell and George Sanders.

New Capitol Film Shows Big Wardrobe

Talk about a deluxe screen wardrobe—Marie McDonald has 38 Irene-designed fashions for her role opposite Gene Kelly in M-G-M's new dancing, romancing comedy, "Living in a Big Way," which opens at the Capitol Theatre Monday.

As the wealthy society heiress in the new Gregory LaCava story, Miss McDonald does her stuff in a dazzling variety of evening gowns, afternoon frocks, tailored suits and play dresses, in addition to half a dozen bathing suits.

The new picture, directed as well as written by LaCava, who gave the screen the memorable "My Man Godfrey," unfolds a fast-moving tale of a young couple who marry in haste and reconverge at leisure. Highlights are four novel dance routines starring Kelly, who makes his first picture appearance in the M-G-M production after three years in the U.S. navy.

GLACIER, B.C.—S. R. Vallance of Calgary was elected president of the Alpine Club of Canada Friday at the close of the club's two-week outing here. Elected for a three-year term, Mr. Vallance succeeds E. Brooks of Vancouver, who becomes honorary secretary.

Young Boy Displays Cool Nerve In Controlling Runaway Car On Malahat

Badly-damaged sedan car which seven-year-old Phillip Bentley, Sooke, piloted to avert two potential death crashes and finally ran it into a bank to stop it on a Malahat Hill Friday, when he found himself alone in the vehicle after a skid and a bank crash had thrown his father, Charles F. Bentley, to the pavement.

Seven-year-old Phillip Bentley, son of Charles F. Bentley, Sooke, displayed cool nerve in the face of danger when his father was thrown out of the car and he found himself alone in the careening vehicle on a Malahat downhill grade Friday morning, according to Constable Jack Lockie of the Provincial Police.

On the Malahat hill, where the Shawigan Lake cutoff joins the Island Highway, during a heavy summer downpour of rain the car suddenly went into a skid. It crashed into the bank, made a complete turn, throwing Mr. Bentley out onto the pavement in the process, and then headed down the highway with Phillip in the back seat.

The zigzagging runaway car was heading straight for a guard rail and a 30-foot drop when Phillip reached over the front seat, took hold of the steering wheel and managed to steer the car back onto the road, "a presence of mind that is surprising in one so young in such a critical situation," commented Constable Lockie.

Back on the road the car gained momentum as it sped down hill. Seeing another car coming up the hill in the opposite direction, Phillip turned the wheel again and headed the fast-moving car toward a steep bank.

He opened the door to jump, became frightened of possible injuries due to the speed of the runaway vehicle, and decided to stick it out.

The car crashed into the bank. It was badly wrecked. Father and son were rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital by the officer, whose siren was heard through the city as he made a fast trip to the scene following a telephoned message from the Lookout that a bad accident had occurred.

The father was treated for head and chest injuries, while Phillip suffered even less, a cut lip, some minor bruises, a bad case of jumpy nerves from the incident which might have caused his death had it not been for his coolness in a tight situation.

Temporary Plan For Essondale Farm

The provincial government is now making plans for provisions which will allow the Essondale colony farm to carry on through the winter, following the $250,000 fire which destroyed buildings and equipment there last week, it was learned at the Legislative Buildings Friday.

However, these measures will only be temporary and further discussions will be held to plan construction of permanent buildings to replace those lost.

It is considered quite possible some new scheme may be adopted in planning the new section. The buildings which were lost in the fire were approximately 40 years old and government officials here say it is likely that different plans will be drawn up.

Poultry, Pigeons Prepared For Fairs

With The Lawn Bowlers

By TOM McKEACHIE

With the annual tournament a little over a week away, secretary Capt. Cattroll of the Greater Victoria Association, reminds all bowlers that entries close tonight. Local entries, along with others from all over the Pacific Northwest, have been coming in steadily, and a very fine week of bowling is foreseen by the tournament officials.

LAKE HILL

The Crouch Cup, presented by a former reeve of Saanich, for women's triples, is now being played for, and games have reached the semifinal stage. Skips of the contending trios are Mrs. Munro, Mrs. Macdougall, Mrs. Wallace and Mrs. Peddie. Semifinals and finals will be played on Monday.

Last Wednesday, the "Country Fair" program stood out as the event of the week for this suburban club, with members of all other local clubs lending their support to add to the success of the affair, both financially and socially.

VICTORIA WEST

Attention today will be focused on the first round of the Barnard Cup, mixed rinks event. Twenty-six rinks have been entered, including that of D. C. Robertson, current holder of the silverware. Advanced rounds and finals will be run off next Saturday.

Congratulations to the rink skippered by Charlie Fea, including J. Little, J. Patterson, and B. Dalgarno, for bringing home the Nelson Cup from the Vancouver tournament. Peter Johnston's rink of C. Fea, B. Dalgarno, and J. Imrie further increased the club's showing by capturing the Jenkinson Cup. This is the first time that these trophies have come to Victoria West.

CANADIAN PACIFIC

This club has made a clean sweep of the Vancouver Island singles championships with Miss E. Douglas winning the Wenger trophy in the women's section, and Billy Wilson retaining his laurels as holder of the Peace Cup in the men's division.

Mrs. W. Peden won from Mrs. A. Stewart in a competition which will see the women's singles champion on each club vie for honors as champion of champions in the city will now meet Mrs. Wallace of Victoria West. In the other game Mrs. Scaife of Beacon Hill will oppose Mrs. Webster of Lake Hill.

BURNSIDE

Mixed doubles in the Cross Cup competition have featured play on these greens. Close matches and exceptionally keen competition have been in order, as this fixture boasts many husband and wife partnerships. The event has reached the quarter-finals and play will be resumed immediately following the Greater Victoria tournament week.

BEACON HILL

In club championships, play is up to the quarter-finals in the men's doubles, and the semifinals in men's singles competition. The remaining singles games will see Capt. Cattroll meet Smith, while Phillips takes on Harrison for the right to enter the finals.

The Lloyd doubles played under Scots doubles rules, is progressing well. Totem doubles are also being played. The first prize in this event is a name implies, a pair of genuine Indian Totem poles put up for annual competition by Halliday.

Today's Baseball Pitchers Sissies Says Old-Timer

A big-league pitcher who wins 20 games, today becomes the toast of the baseball world and is given a fat raise in pay. Yet, it is only a few years back that if a pitcher only won 20 games in a season he was told he had a poor year and had his salary cut. Charles Nicholls, pitching for Boston in 1891, won over 30 games a year for seven consecutive years. Cy Young averaged 34 winning games per year for the 22 years he was in the majors.

"Pitchers Are Sissies" is an article every baseball fan will want to read in the August edition of PIC, now on sale at your magazine dealers. PIC Magazine is distributed on Vancouver Island by Lovick's news agency, Victoria, B.C.

Blackwell Ties Record With 16th Mound Win

Ewell Blackwell, Cincinnati's ace righthander with the buggy whip arm, won his 16th straight game last night although touched for 13 hits by Philadelphia Phils, who finally bowed 5 to 4.

Equalling the American League mark held by Joe Wood of Boston, Walter Johnson of Washington, Lefty Grove of Philadelphia and Schoolboy Rowe of Detroit, Blackwell still was three short of the National League and all-time major mark set by Rube Marquand of New York in 1912.

Blackwell fanned nine and walked none on his road to fame, notching his 18th win to two defeats.

While Blackwell was squeaking through with his important win, St. Louis Cardinals advanced into second place by thumping Boston 5 to 1.

President Ford Frick's decision that last Sunday's protested St. Louis-Brooklyn game should stand as a tie took one loss from the Cards and one win from the Dodgers, boosting the Red Birds into a temporary tie with Boston. Last night they broke that deadlock and moved into the runner-up spot.

Brooklyn protected its 5½-game margin by whipping Pittsburgh, 4 to 1, before a night-game crowd of 42,014. Ed Stanky smacked a first-inning home run that started Mel Queen to his downfall while Harry Taylor calmed the Bucs with seven hits.

In the National's only day game, Chicago overcame a three-run homer by Johnny Mize, his 29th of the season, to defeat New York Giants 5 to 3.

Boston's Red Sox, the defending champs, passed Detroit and took over second place in the American by nosing out St. Louis 7 to 6 while the Tigers were bowing to the Philadelphia A's, 9 to 5. New York Yankees piled up another big score in a daylight game yesterday, routing Chicago White Sox 12 to 4 for a 14-hit barrage. The victory, Allie Reynolds' 12th of the season, left the Yanks out front by 1½ games.

Jews Blamed When Booby Trap Kills 2 British Soldiers

JERUSALEM (AP)—Officials said two British soldiers were killed by a booby trap attached to an underground cable they were repairing on the outskirts of Jerusalem today. This brought the casualty toll since late last week in Palestine to at least 12 persons dead and 75 wounded.

An army spokesman said Jewish extremists apparently had cut the cable and installed the booby trap.

REFUGEES AT MARSEILLES

MARSEILLE (Reuter) — Hospital beds, medical supplies, food, blankets and camping equipment were being assembled here today for the arrival of 4,500 Jewish migrants, due in ports in this area after a four-day Mediterranean voyage from Palestine.

An undisclosed sickness has broken out among the wanderers, refused admittance to Palestine last Saturday because they had no visas. Violence broke out when their vessel, Exodus of 1947, formerly the S. President Warfield, was boarded by a British naval party and casualties resulted.

At Haifa the illegal immigrants were transhipped to three British vessels and returned to their French port of embarkation, while the Exodus of 1947 was impounded.

News Of The Anglers

By ROY THORSEN

A little fellow, 11-year-old Billy Mackay, 1358 Pandora Avenue, was an overlooked prizewinner in the anglers' association first major junior derby last Sunday in Saanich Inlet.

Due to a misunderstanding Billy got missed out in the prize list. Out with Don McLean he reeled in an 8½-pounder to score third prize in the under-13 group. Because his age was misinterpreted as 14 he was put in the older class, which did not have prizes for this weight of fish.

Harry Woolston, president, announced this week that the A's pitcher Bill Woop would again be asked to autograph the soft ball of the ball and bat prize the youngster won.

What appeared to be the "grand-daddy" of all salmon in the lower island waters attracted thousands of the curious and envious to feast their eyes on the giant displayed in ice in front of Roger Monteith's store Thursday and yesterday. Questions from the gallery flew thick and fast relative to who caught it, where and when, but Monteith and staff were deaf to all questions. It was a contest to see how close the public could come to guessing the specimen's weight.

At 4 yesterday afternoon, via a loudspeaker system, as promised on a sign over the display, it was announced the heavy fellow weighed 56½ pounds, on being weighed when caught.

It was not caught on a rod, reel and line, but rather at Sooke traps. It was donated by Ernie D. Todd to raise funds for Sooke Community Club for the impending All Sooke Day next week.

A total of 173 persons ventured guesses as to the salmon's weight and it was John Daniel who came closest to the mark. He guessed 56 pounds, 3 ounces, and won the fish. Next closest was Bud Fisher, 56.1 pounds.

Just about everywhere one goes these days in city angling circles the big question is "Are the coho here yet?" A check-up shows that in Esquimalt Harbor, of Sidney and James Island and in Saanich Inlet there is a fair showing. But only the odd one has been taken to date off Oak Bay and south of the city, including one by Matt Sellinger, formerly of Seattle but now resident here, strip-casting off Oak Bay Thursday night. He took a 23½-pound spring Wednesday night.

Saanich Inlet this week did not yield many big-weight springs. However, the grilse population is quite big at the present time—from Mill Bay down to Goldstream. The trio of Charlie Shipley, son Larry and Tommy Ross took 22 off Bamberton Wednesday.

Some of the biggest fish taken in the inlet during the week were, according to a boathouse survey:

Canada Urges No Clash In Japan Treaty Talk Dates

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has asked the United States if it would be possible to change the date of a proposed meeting of the Far Eastern Commission, on the Japanese peace treaty, now set for Aug. 19, the External Affairs Department said today, because that date clashes with a British Commonwealth meeting on the same subject in Australia.

A brief statement said the government had "expressed the hope" that some other date could be agreed upon for the conference of the 11 member nations of the commission which has been mapping Far Eastern policy in Washington since the end of the Pacific war.

Defence Minister Claxton has been named to head a Canadian delegation to an informal, non-committal Commonwealth conference on the treaty, scheduled to start Aug. 26 in Canberra. This, the statement said, would make it "difficult" for Canada to be represented at another conference on the same subject in the U.S. about the same time.

The communication from the U.S. government had been answered with a welcome for the proposal for a commission conference and the reply had "expressed satisfaction with the provision for the 11 powers primarily interested in the settlement with Japan to participate fully from the beginning in the preparation of the treaty."

This was an obvious reference to Canada's experience in being cold-shouldered in her wish to have her voice heard directly in the German treaty discussions.

The statement was the latest development in a somewhat delicate diplomatic situation which confronted the foreign service with the quandary of roughly coincident meetings on the same subject thousands of miles apart.

With a considerable delegation of officials and other experts set to go to Canberra, it would be "difficult" as the statement said—to match them with another to go to Washington.

CHICAGO (AP)—A strong buying movement came into the grain pits shortly before the close today and prices spurted several cents in active trading. Some of the buying was believed to represent covering by previous short-sellers who wanted to get out of the market during the week-end.

One Woman's Day

By NANCY HODGES

SOCIAL CLIMBERS

I ALWAYS UNDERSTOOD that the way of the social climber was hard, but I hadn't realized just how hard until recently. Since two University of California psychiatrists have been revealing something of what these people pay by way of tax on their efforts to attain equality with those in the upper social strata.

And it isn't only in terms of money, it seems, indispensable and all-important though that factor may be.

For an unusual number of "social climbers and strainers" suffer from chronic disease, duodenal ulcers and thyroid illness, these experts claim.

PREMIUM COSTLY

THEY MADE THE STATEMENT before the American Medical Association at its recent convention in Atlantic City in a joint paper.

Describing four-year studies conducted at their medical school into the psychological aspects of illness, they declared:

"The striving for betterment, income, position, power and property requires a permanent adaptation of the individual to new groups."

"He has to undergo a remarkable change in his system of values, in his techniques of mastery and in the habits and customs acquired in childhood if he changes from one social class to another."

HARDLY WORTH IT

THE RESULTANT ULCERS, and whatnot, seem a pretty high premium to pay for keeping up with the Joneses.

It's true that in the course of a long and varied life, I've seen many a woman suffer agonies because Mrs. Gotrox had a bigger house, bigger wardrobe, and bigger cocktail parties than she could afford.

But I thought the agony was caused by envy and frustration. I hadn't suspected ulceration—nor had she, I'm pretty sure.

And I've known many a woman who, because her husband has struck oil—figuratively speaking—has managed to get in the social swim and keep afloat by staging big splashes.

NOT FAUX PAS?

I'VE ALSO SEEN those same social climbers, after ostensibly making the grade, far less happy than they were before they attained the social heights.

Sometimes I have thought they were suffering from a rash of "faux pas"—if there is such a thing these days—but I certainly didn't suspect their fitters went right down to the duodenum.

Evidently, when Mr. and Mrs. Suburbia finally land among the Gotroxes and Fitzblooms—Poshes, their "know-how" gets lost, they feel isolated, and social, mental or physical pathology is the result. That's what the doctors were told, at any rate.

'CURIOUSER AND CURIOUSER'

REALLY, IT'S GETTING that you can't do anything these days without feeling that some little psychology bug is going to get you if you don't watch out.

I recall not so very long ago when we were warned by a Canadian psychiatrist that too much Santa Claus and fairy tales in childhood would bring along stomach ulcers at 40 or thereabouts.

Well, the social climbers can at least feel that they have something to be thankful for, something which lifts them above the common herd.

Even if it's only the distinction of having shifted their ulcers from the more vulgar stomach region to the higher social level of the duodenum!

A Report to Shareholders

BATA PETROLEUM LIMITED ANNOUNCES

1. A five-well program for oil production in the northwest portion of our property south of Lone Rock and east of Dina has commenced. Dr. J. O. G. Sanderson has made the locations, and the first well was spudded on the night of July 22. Bata already has a proven oil and gas structure 40 miles southwest of the proven gas field at Unity. On this structure Dr. Sanderson, our Geologist, states that oil entered the well at the rate of about 80 barrels daily on drill stem test.
2. Bata has been instrumental in discovering probably the greatest deposit of potassium chloride (potash) in the world. The discovery is potentially Canada's biggest "Mineral Jackpot" in 20 years. This is how technicians regard the rich, new potash field, recently discovered on Bata's property—the first time that this mineral, vital in the manufacture of fertilizer, explosives, glass and soaps, has been found anywhere in Canada in commercial quantities. Technicians state that this deposit may prove to be the largest in the world when compared to Staßfurt, Germany; Alsace, France; and Carlsbad, New Mexico. The potash occurs in the top 50 feet of the salt bed, which is 434 feet thick. The beds have been tested and found to be entirely free of water bearing strata or other communication outside the deposit. This is regarded as an unusual, attractive feature in respect to producing operation either by mining or pumping production. The development of the potash has already been announced. VISUALIZE WHAT THIS MEANS TO BATA.
3. Prairie Salt Company Limited (wholly-owned subsidiary of Dominion Tar & Chemical Company) has completed its two sodium chloride (salt) wells and they are now ready for production. Plant construction will proceed according to plan, which means an expenditure of approximately $1,000,000.00. Bata holds long-term gas contracts and will receive a royalty on all salt produced.
4. Bata owns over 2,000,000 acres of potential oil and gas land under lease, permit and reservation, including approximately 245,000 acres of Mineral Rights under reserve from the C.P.R. No promotional over-riding royalties are payable on any of this land.
5. Bata has surveyed over 200,000 acres of this potential oil and gas land, by geophysical (gravimetric) tests, which indicate several major structures.
6. Bata owns producing wells with daily open flow in excess of 140,000 cubic feet of natural gas, located near Unity, Saskatchewan.
7. The Government has announced rural electrification of northwestern Saskatchewan through the use of Natural Gas engines. The first large engine is already installed in the Unity power house.
8. Structural conditions indicated by both geological and geophysical reports satisfy our technicians that major oil production will be obtained both above and in the Devonian limestone, within the confines of Bata's holdings.

BATA'S POLICY

The policy of the Company is to develop natural resources such as oil, gas, salt and potassium chloride (potash) within our enormous holdings as rapidly as good practice warrants, under the direction of highly experienced and competent technicians, internationally recognized, who have in the past guided all field operations of BATA PETROLEUMS LIMITED and will continue to do so in the future.

Giant Eye, Big As Skyscraper, Delicate As Watch

By PATT WAITS.
PASADENA, Calif. — Imagine a man-made machine the size of a skyscraper and as delicate as a Swiss watch.

That's the Mt. Palomar telescope, and even after seeing it, I cannot comprehend that engineers and scientists conceived such a "giant eye." If a bridge were built as big as the telescope's tube, it could sag several inches and still be usable; the Palomar tube cannot vary more than one-sixteenth of an inch.

Mt. Palomar, near San Diego, starts operations late this year. The 200-inch telescope mirror is now in a special optical building at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, where scientists are polishing its surface to near perfection.

On the rugged Palomar mountain plateau, workmen are finishing controls on the 500-ton telescope mount. In a few months trucks will haul the mirror up the mountain and install it in the silver observatory dome atop.

ATMOSPHERIC CHOICE

Mt. Palomar was chosen as the site because atmospheric conditions on the 5,500-foot high plateau aid clear observations. The mountain's remoteness from urban areas means no city lights will interfere. Good roads are available for transporting heavy parts up the mountain.

A crew of 80 will care for the Palomar community, which has been provided with all modern utilities, including a private telephone exchange and short-wave radio communication with the university.

In order to have perfect reflections in the 162 3/4-foot pancake mirror, temperature and humidity must be kept constant in the building where it is mounted. Variables cause uneven expansion of the mirror and therefore imperfect reflections, and produce deviations in the path of light rays.

The specially-constructed room at Cal Tech where the giant mirror is being polished has thick concrete walls without windows, so heat near the mirror will remain constant. The room has its own refrigerating and air-conditioning system.

I was not allowed to enter the room, but had to observe from a visitors' platform behind heavy glass panels. When the giant "eye" is finally mounted, visitors will not be allowed near it, because the heat from their bodies would distort the surface of the mirror.

REMOVE FIVE TONS

The disc arrived at Cal Tech in 1936, and rough grinding was started. For two years the disc was shaped to the right form. More than 10 tons of abrasive were used to remove over five tons of glass.

Visitors will never look through this mirror the way they look through an ordinary telescope. Instead, a camera will take pictures of the skies so scientists may have a permanent record to study.

And now, after all this sweat and toil from some of the world's most brilliant men, after millions of dollars have been spent, what will mankind be able to see through the Mt. Palomar Observatory?

There are several theories, but most astronomers won't predict what they expect when they look through the lens to astral distances never before visible from the earth.

WILL STUDY MARS

Dr. Edwin P. Hubble, Pasadena astronomer, says the "giant eye" will determine whether intelligent life exists on Mars. Some scientists have reported seeing canals on that planet and others scoff at the idea. "The canal systems, if real, would almost necessarily imply the existence of intelligent beings on Mars," he says, so what Palomar reveals should settle a 70-year-old controversy.

Other of science's greatest riddles may be answered. Do star systems extend on indefinitely or is a boundary finally reached?

What is the true interpretation of the immense speed with which all the star systems appear to be receding from the earth? Is it a pseudo-speed caused by a curva-ture of space or by some property of light?

Scientists will learn the distance from earth to stars as yet unknown. They will know how large these bodies are and how much light they emit or reflect.

In the same way that helium was discovered on the sun long before it was found on earth, scientists may find new elements on other planets.

But astronomers do not really know. Man has never peered into the heavens farther than 500,000 light years. Palomar will potentially double this figure.

A light year is the number of miles that light travels in a year's time—the figure is six followed by 12 zeros. So the total distance the Palomar Observatory scientists will be able to see is six, followed by 18 zeros, miles.

Seeks Rare Ore In Canada To Aid Cancer Fight

By DON MILLER

EDMONTON (CP)—Search for a rare, unnamed substance bearing radio-active elements that may be valuable in the treatment of malignant diseases will be made around Yellowknife in the Northwest Territories by a French metallurgist.

Maurice Strittmatter, who spent 4 1/2 years in Canada during the war and staked tantalum claims in 1945 near Doubtful Lake, 100 miles southeast of Yellowknife, first saw the rare ore in Paris, France, when he returned there to investigate systems of refining tantalum.

Looking much like a piece of broken onyx and having low specific gravity, the substance contains all the elements belonging to the second group or rare ores; known to scientists as "Group 2 Yttrium."

FEW ISOLATED

There are 10 elements, some of which are radio-active, in this group and only a few of them have been isolated.

Mr. Strittmatter was given a sample of the substance by the head of the French Institute of Chemistry in Paris. It was found in volcanic formations at Limoges, France, in small quantity.

Although scientists so far have been unable to break it down, and have no name for it—the French refer to it as "Les Terres Rares"—they believe the radio-active elements can eventually be used in the treatment of malignant diseases.

Mr. Strittmatter said "It is hoped the substance can be reduced so that it can be administered intravenously or orally," in the treatment of cancer.

SEARCHES FOR CANADA

He believes he saw identical deposits around Yellowknife and was asked by the chemistry institute to search for it in Canada. On his return Mr. Strittmatter sent samples to Ottawa in the hope they can recognize it and co-operate in the search.

Mr. Strittmatter, professionally a metallurgist, primarily is interested in the reduction of all ores and originally came to Canada in 1941 and worked especially in the reduction of Canadian ores. He returned to Paris after it was freed by the Allies and saw his family for the first time in six years. His mother, wife and daughter still live in Paris.

Besides devoting his time in search of the rare ore, Mr. Strittmatter is being retained as a consultant metallurgist by a Canadian mining company.

Railway Window Reveals Old-Fashioned Flowers

Coming south from Duncan the other afternoon I was delighted to see some of the old-fashioned midsummer plants in full flower along the right-of-way. The most conspicuous ones, however, were not native to our island, but European immigrants that have been long domiciled among our aboriginal species.

The first of these I saw at Cowichan Station where it makes a gallant show. This is the common St. John's Wort, Hypericum perforatum, a tall plant a foot to two feet high, well branched and bearing many golden flowers in corymbs or open rather flat-topped clusters.

The botanical specific name is descriptive of the numerous clear dots that mark the opposite oblong leaves and look like little holes picked in the green tissue. Actually they are cells filled with an essential oil both aromatic and astringent. To this oil is due the properties which made the plant a valuable one in olden days as a wound-wort and one of the names applied to the genus was Tutsan, a corruption of the French Toutsaine or heal-all. Its association with St. John is derived from the date of St. John the Baptist's day falling on June 24 when the plant is in flower, and that date coincided with Midsummer eve and the bonfires and other modes of celebration of that season practised in pagan and mediaeval times. With other plants it was hung over households and used by maidens to foretell their future husbands.

PLEASANT SIGHT

Although this is only one of eleven species found in the British Isles it is one of the commonest, and its bright yellow flowers are a pleasant sight these mid-summer days.

We have two native species of St. John's Wort that are worth attention. One is Scouler's Hypericum which differs in having its flowers in loose panicles or clusters in which the branches and branches are irregular in height. It also has clear dots but they are usually smaller and less conspicuous. The edges of the leaves are edged with small black dots.

The perforate species also has them. The other native species is confined to the margins of lakes and muskogs where it covers the ground with its low bluish green leafage above which rise the very small flowers of an orange or deep yellow tint. It is a charming little plant, perhaps all the more so in its native surroundings, often with the carnivorous sundew and the deep blue sceptre gentian for neighbors, and in an atmosphere permeated by the scent of Labrador tea.

ROSE OF SHARON

The St. John's Worts all agree in the general structure of their flowers, a structure well seen in the large garden species, H. calycinum, or large-flowered St. John's Wort, sometimes called Rose of Sharon. Its five large petals enclose five clusters of stamens, each cluster with about fifty hair-like filaments, and these in turn surround the clustered five styles. In other species such as our two native and H. perforatum the number of styles is but three, but the clusters of golden anthers are found in all, and their presence constitutes a great part of the floral beauty.

Near Cobble Hill I saw the fireweed in its beauty. This handsome Epilobium angustifolium, also known as Rose Bay and French Willow, is the same plant that sprang up over the devastated areas of British cities and gave rise to much speculation as to its sudden appearance. Its beautiful feathery seeds, borne by every lightest breath of wind, are the explanation there as on our burnt-off logging areas, of its wide dissemination and sudden appearance.

The bright blue flowers of the chicory appeared at one place; a children's name is Blue Sailors, not unfitting for its color and for its smart shipshape appearance. The wild goldenrod and the snowy pearl everlasting were also seen. The latter, Anaphalis or Antennaria margaritacea, has found its way by gardeners to parts of Great Britain and the Channel Islands.

Medieval Chivalry Revives Old Order After 400 Years

EDINBURGH (CP)—Ceremonial of medieval chivalry not seen in Scotland for four centuries marked the revival and reconstitution, here, of the Priory of Scotland of the Venerable Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem.

The order, dissolved in Scotland by Mary Queen of Scots in 1554 and sequestered in England by Queen Elizabeth five years later, received a royal charter from Queen Victoria in 1888.

The Duke of Gloucester, as Grand Prior and representing the King, formally revived the Priory of Scotland, appointing the Earl of Lindsay as Scottish Prior.

IN THRONE ROOM

The ceremony was held in the oak-paneled throne room of the Palace of Holyrood House. Sir Malcolm Barclay-Harvey, of Dinnet, who later was to be appointed director of ceremonies for the Priory, entered first, carrying his black wand of office tipped with a small gold cross of St. John and wearing the black mantle of the order with the white cross of St. John sewn on the left side.

He was followed by the Earl of Lindsay and other officers and by St. Giles' Cathedral choir.

As members of the procession took their places the Duke of Gloucester and officers of the Chapter General were ushered in. Beneath his black velvet mantle the Duke wore the kilted uniform of the Gordon Highlanders of which he is colonel-in-chief.

The chaplain—Very Rev. Charles L. Warr, dean of the Thistle and Chapel Royal—read the customary prayers and the chancellor of the Grand Priory, Hospital, Glasgow.

Briefs From Britain

LONDON—During the next six months nearly 1,500,000 square yards of London streets are to be resurfaced.

LONDON—Newly-built streets will bear names associated with labor and "working class" leaders in preference to names of wartime cabinet ministers. It was decided.

LONDON—County Councillor Frank H. Campbell advised a Chamber of Trade meeting to "trust the press" and to co-operate with reporters regardless of what paper they represented.

LONDON—A thief bound and gagged Mrs. Evelyn Holman, 30, stole £12 ($48) and a gold watch and then kept his promise to her by telephoning Scotland Yard to give details of his attack.

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man—Surpluses of £178,000 ($715,000) in general revenue and £189,000 in income tax funds highlighted this year's Manx budget. Income tax rates—12 1/2 to 17 1/2 per cent remained unchanged.

LONDON—H.M.S. Wellington, a former navy sloop used for wartime escort work and now moored in the Thames at Blackfriars Bridge, will be used as headquarters for the Honorable Company of Master Mariners.

Col. Sir Edwin King, then asked Maj. John Forrest Hamilton, vice-chairman of the Scottish Committee of the Order, to read the petition for revival of the Scottish Priory.

It set out the following as among the objects of the Priory of Scotland:

The formation of medical comforts depots, particularly in outlying districts; provision and operation of travelling clinics; collection of funds and the foundation and maintenance of the Order of St. John Foundation Hospital, Glasgow.

One Of Marine Wonders Of World, Mecca For Tourists

By LEONE KIRKWOOD
SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—Scientists call it "one of the marine wonders of the globe." Artists describe it as a place where "nature has allowed herself to run riot." The average Australian, less articulate but just as appreciative, simply refers to it as "wonderful."

Its official name is the Great Barrier Reef. A formation of multi-colored coral islands, it stretches for 1,200 miles off the Queensland coast of northeastern Australia.

The Great Barrier Reef has always been a mecca for beauty-loving Australians, and current suggestions in government circles are that it may be fitted up with enough conveniences to make it the Commonwealth's showplace.

A year-round, warm-weather resort, it draws all types of visitors. Among the most famous, the late novelist Zane Grey who loved it for the deep-sea fishing it offered.

NATIVES RIDE TURTLES

Tourists like the trips in glass-bottomed boats to watch the marine life including the odd shark. Another novelty is watching the natives ride turtles. After the turtles come up on beaches to deposit eggs, natives hop on their backs as they slowly jog out into deep water.

The actual reef is not populated. Year-round residents and visitors set themselves up on small islands which lie between the reef and the continent. Most of these atolls are protrusions of sunken land though some are coral. Majority of the islands have small coral reefs which prevent sharks from coming too close to land.

Some of the islands are occupied on 99-year leases by persons who lead lives as lonely as lighthouse keepers. When ships go by, island families turn out to wave, tablecloths, clothes or just their arms in salutation.

HARD LIFE

Although permanent residents of the Great Barrier Reef district manage to make a bare living, their mode of life is hard. The principal industry, aside from the tourist business, is fishing or hunting for the pearly shell of a clam known as the trochus which is used for button manufacture.

The reef, submerged at high tide, took nature an estimated 1,000,000 years to build. It is still growing—both in size and in importance as one of Australia's natural attractions.

PAPER CLIPS

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

It was not until Alice reached her office and put down her many packages that she knew she had either lost or left in the bus or train the most important of the lot.

She had sat up, straining her eyes with the fine print of the telephone directory, until after midnight, addressing envelopes to be sent out with samples of her paper clips, and she had stupidly proceeded to lose 500 of them.

Alice felt like indulging in a grand, devastating cry, but realized with her sound common sense that she dare not acquire a red nose and tear-dimmed eyes at the very commencement of her business day. Alice might have felt a bit more cheery as she opened her morning mail.

But from the depths of her gloom she failed to see that glimmer of hope.

A few, nice orders among her letters and the work attendant upon getting them packed up, invoiced and dispatched left her little time to fret about her loss and it was just nearing the noon hour when a young man entered her office.

She had her hat on preparatory to locking the office and going out for her noon breath of fresh air as well as a large cup of coffee and a sandwich.

The young man needed no introduction.

She smiled such a charming smile that young Woodward almost lost his breath and forgot to mention his reason for being there.

However, being an outside salesman and more than accustomed to various types of receptions in offices he visited, he managed to smile joyfully in return and say briskly:

"I found these envelopes in the Fifth Avenue bus this morning and being curious, opened up the package. I found the name of A. Caton, Incorporated, and this print of the clip which I suppose your office supplies."

"I happen to be the office store house, manager, office boy and all the directors," laughed Alice, "and I am tremendously pleased to get those back, so soon. I sat up until 12.30 addressing them."

"Oh, I say—then I suppose you are Miss Caton." He hesitated for a second, then plunged boldly into his reason for appearing in person with the lost property. "I suppose you are just going out to lunch, but I wanted to make a proposition about this clip."

"Well, I wasn't exactly going out to lunch, but I was going to have some coffee. I have only the noon hour to get out—being a one-man office force. Perhaps," she smiled at young Woodward.

"Just so. Perhaps you will go with me for that cup of coffee. A pure business cup," he laughed. And when they sat at the marble counter, each with a steaming cup of coffee with cream floating on top and sandwiches beside them, Woodward plunged into his idea.

"You see, Miss Caton, I am an outside salesman working a few good stationery lines and I feel that I could sell a lot of those clips of yours—commission basis, of course. It looks like about the best paper clip on the market."

"It is," said Alice with conviction, "and I sell millions of them now, but I want to do a lot more. I am just struggling upward at the moment and could do with some outside salesmen—good ones—that is."

"I'm all that," laughed Woodward, "and if you want to save postage on this batch of envelopes, I will take this along with me. It will give me a bit of a start."

Alice laughed at his enthusiasm and felt a great wave of gratitude sweeping over her to ward this very attractive and able young man. She had been feeling a bit in need of assistance if her business was to expand and had not known just how to go about it.

"I will have to attach all the clips first," she told him. "I put one of each size on the circular card so that the actual clip is seen and tested in the office."

"That's the stuff," exclaimed Woodward, "no use being mean in business. But it will take you a long time to do thousands of them, won't it?"

Alice sighed softly. "Yes, but I have to do it. I can do hundreds in the evenings at home."

"Oh, I say—couldn't I help? I have only some uninteresting fellow boarders to spend the evenings with. I'd love to help you. Besides—the sooner we swing this batch into the office the better."

Alice laughed. The We had come out so unconsciously.

You are the kind of salesman I have dreamed about, but never hoped to find," she told him with laughing lips.

And Woodward found himself lost in contemplation of a future

WITH ATMOSPHERE

By PHYLLIS M. GALLACHER

Vernon and Marietta proceeded up the seven flights of steps to the attic. On the first landing, where they encountered the odor of boiling cabbage, Vernon assured her that Madame Kaszkowar, wealthy artist, patroness of all things beautiful, who had a passion for living like a starving genius, was above such a crude diet. Indeed! Six floors above! And even on the next landing where some hundred waterbugs marched with real military formation on the spoils of an unwashed milk bottle, Vernon's enthusiasm for the Madame did not waver.

"After we are married I want to live just as she does, so I, too, can be inspired!" Vernon confessed. "Paris was mad over her! And now Washington!"

"Is breathless!" Marietta finished, wondering if it was due to the Madame's art or the Madame's steps.

The Madame opened the door herself—that is she pulled back yards of grimy cheesecloth and thrust a nondescript head and a gaudy body from under the veil. Leaning on a golden staff she nodded regally, or at least as regally as two hundred pounds can nod.

The studio was unspeakably dark and dirty, and when Vernon pulled up a frail chair Marietta settled her ninety-eight pounds in it with some misgivings. After they were all seated, looking at one another, saying nothing, the Madame began clapping her hands.

In answer to the pudgy palms, two Negro boys, in dirty white cheesecloth robes, remnants of the material hanging at the door, came bearing paintings—the Madame's work.

Before the first picture was uncovered Vernon whispered for Marietta to remove her hat, that Madame being Russian and knowing not a word of English could not make the request. It was disrespectful to view the Madame's art with a covered head. Marietta rebelled, but then her eyes met the Madame's gimlet stare and giving her golden curls a toss, the offending blue felt was unperched.

When the painting was undraped Marietta's backbone stiffened. It was called "The Wrestlers." There were no heads, feet, arms... or men in fact. It was a conglomeration of red tube things, looking for all the world like an X-ray of an intestinal disorder. Vernon heaved a big sigh, his dark eyes glowing. "Marvelous!" he breathed.

With clumsy fingers the Negroes uncovered another, entitled "The Bathing."

Marietta's lashes screwed together in a tangle. She couldn't find the bath. There were nuts and bolts and screws tied on a cord and because of this Marietta's heart increased several beats. She could never see nuts and bolts and screws without thinking of great, blonde Jim Cummings, head mechanic at the Capitol Garage. Marietta was remembering last night when she had told Jim Cummings: "I can't marry you, Jim, because I hate grease and paint and dirt. But I do love you. Yet I'm fond of Vernon. I've promised to marry him. He's an artist, you know, and that's a beautiful clean thing to be."

A beautiful, clean thing to be. Marietta wondered. That was Jim! Paint grease on smocks! That was Vernon! Jim would be dirty eight hours every day at the garage only; Vernon would live in dirt—he had called it "atmosphere"—and she with him.

Suddenly Marietta's mind cleared. She had never been fond of Vernon, the old crackpot! She had been carried away by his promise of a life dedicated to beauty, a studio "with atmosphere" which she had visualized as a lovely Seventeenth century affair. Some artists did have them. She'd seen them in the movies!

She slapped her felt on her curls, conscious that the Madame's brows had arched, shocked; conscious that Jim's eyes were burning into her profile.

She jumped to her feet. She cried: "I think this studio is lousy and those paintings are—nerz!"

And the Madame, who was Russian and could speak not a word of English, howled: "Well, if you don't like my stuff—"

But Marietta didn't wait to be asked to leave, she was already on her way down the seven flights.

Jim Cummings was under a Packard seeing what made it tick when Marietta ran into the garage breathless from her race of three city blocks.

"Jim!" she cried and dropped to her knees on the concrete floor which was clean in comparison to the Madame's spurious hardwood. "Can you forgive me?"

And Jim, who had just about reached the limit of enduring life without the one and only Marietta, smiled broadly and said: "Forgive you? Aw! gee! Marietta!... and how!"

AGREE TO DISAGREE

By R. RAY BAKER

"Do you think we were made for each other, Fred?" Fred Hamilton's lip curled in scorn.

"Hardly. I have never thought so—except back in our school days when I used to carry your books and share my jaw-breakers with you."

"Then why carry on this farce any longer? It's making us both miserable. We don't love each other; in fact, it's quite the reverse. For one thing, you're terribly selfish, and there are other things about you I do not like."

"Thanks for the compliment," he said dryly. "Perhaps I am selfish, but remember I am an only child. To be frank, I have much the same opinion about you."

She lifted the vase and inhaled the fragrance from the flowers. "Thanks for the compliment," she mocked. "Perhaps I also am selfish, but remember I, too, am an only child. It's nice to have an understanding, isn't it? It appears to be mutually agreeable for us to disagree."

"Decidedly," he acquiesced. "It was foolish for us to become engaged in the first place."

"We wouldn't have," she reminded Fred, "if it had not been for our parents. Just because they had all been friends they tried to settle our destiny for us."

When Fred left the apartment occupied by Eva and her aunt he was not in the best spirits imaginable. He was as glad to be free of Eva as she was to get rid of him, but that remark about selfishness rang.

He had been driving abstractedly, when of a sudden a cry distracted him. A big touring car wherein the girl opposite him played a somewhat more intimate part than that of employer of a commission salesman.

Alice found herself much to her annoyance coloring under that regard—but somehow they both knew that a little paper clip on a lost envelope had given them each other as well as increased business.

ahead but came quickly to a halt, but as abruptly it started off and disappeared. Jamming on the brakes, Fred managed to avoid striking a small, huddled human form on the street.

He looked, with a feeling of curiosity for a moment. It was no concern of his, was his thought, until suddenly the trend of his recent recollection flashed back to his mind. You're terribly selfish, were the words that echoed in his ears, and they prompted him to leave the car, and join the group.

A man held the limp form in his arms. Fred recognized the pale face as that of a diminutive newsboy familiar to this busy corner.

"Poor kid," said the man. "That big car hit him and hurled away. What had I better do with him?"

"Take him to Doctor Wilson's office across the street," Fred directed.

"He will get along all right," said the doctor, "but he ought to be taken home at once."

The boy looked up wildly. "No. No!" he exclaimed, in a plaintive little voice. "I can't go. I haven't sold my papers—my papers! Where are they?"

"That's all right," said Fred. "Come on with me and I'll take you home. I have the money for your papers right here. You see, I—I sold them for you."

The lad lived with his father in a hotel in the worst part of the city. The father was an invalid.

"You are very good to us," said the father on the occasion of one of Fred's visits.

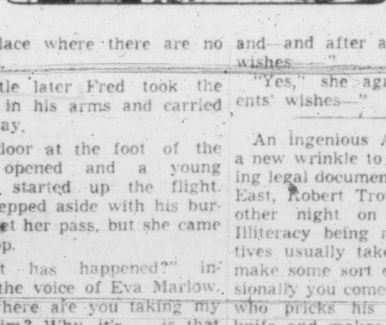

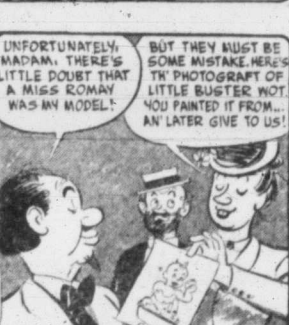

"And I like you best of any body in the world," Little Jim told Fred, "except daddy and one other."

Came a day when Fred called to find Little Jim in tears. His father had suffered another stroke.

The sick man smiled sadly and raised his eyes appealingly to Fred. Then he uttered a deep sigh and lay back, closing his eyes. Little Jim's father had gone to a place where there are no wishes and—after all, our parents' wishes—

A little later Fred took the orphan in his arms and carried him away.

The door at the foot of the stairs opened and a young woman, startled up the flight. Fred stepped aside with his burden to let her pass, but she came to a stop.

"What has happened?" inquired the voice of Eva Marlow. "And where are you taking my Little Jim? Why, it's— is that you, Fred?"

"It is," he said calmly but somewhat aggressively. "and I'm taking him home because his father is dead. And what do you mean 'my Little Jim'?"

She appeared indignant. "Why, I've been coming to see these people for some time. It started by your calling me selfish. That very day I came into this district to see if I could discover a way to become—unselfish; and I found Little Jim and his father. I love the little fellow, and I am going to take him home with me."

Little Jim smiled through his teeth.

He reached out with one arm and encircled the girl's neck, while the other clung to Fred. It brought the two very close together.

"Eva," said Fred, clearing his throat. "I don't believe I dislike you after all. You are not selfish, trice residents."

Joe Martin, 'Vice-President'

Speaker Of U.S. House, Who Disclaims Any Presidential Ambitions, Now Legally Next In Line For The Job

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

WASHINGTON—With Republican presidential aspirants all over the lot, the one G.O.P. big wig who is probably most sincere about disclaiming ambitions to become President suddenly finds himself, legally, next in line for the job.

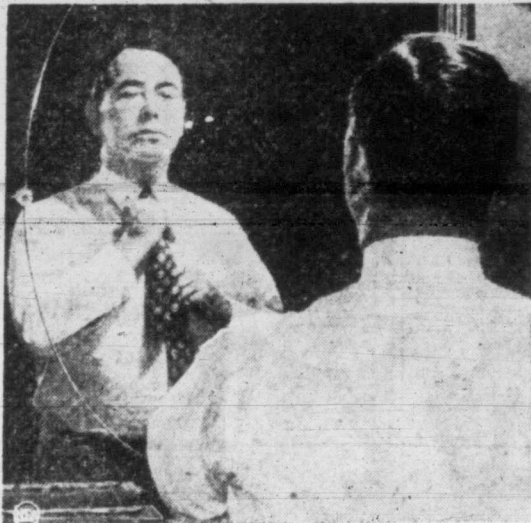

He is Joseph William Martin, of Massachusetts, Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives. He is, in effect, Vice-President by virtue of the new law which makes the Speaker of the House second in line for the presidency instead of the Secretary of State. The death of Franklin Roosevelt put President Truman in the White House and left the Vice-President spot vacant until the next election.

But his new legal proximity to the White House, Martin claims, doesn't excite him any more than has his geographical proximity. For the past half dozen years he has lived in the Hay-Adams Hotel, just across Lafayette Square from the executive mansion.

Martin tries not to get excited about anything. About as excited as anybody's seen him recently was when newspapermen asked him about several proposals for marriage he had received in the mail when he was elected Speaker of the House for the 80th Congress. He's a bachelor. Martin just spluttered and wouldn't say anything.

His staff formally requests that no new proposals need be sent in. They say that Martin is convinced that President Truman is in good health, and that the Secret Service is doing an adequate job of protecting him. They say that Martin doesn't think he will be responsible for making the White House shy a First Lady.

And besides that, Martin already has two loves, which take up all his time—politics and law-making. It was his honest and loyal devotion to these two loves in Congress since 1924 which won him such universal praise from both parties when he became Speaker of the 80th Congress, this year. And he has added to his prestige in the job. Rep. Sam Rayburn of Texas, Martin's Democratic predecessor in the Speakership, says Martin "has done an extremely able and fair job thus far." And Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, the Republican Floor Leader, says that Martin "has lived up to all the high expectations we had of him for helping the party fulfill its campaign commitments and getting it started in its relatively new role as the majority party in Congress."

In his apartment across Lafayette Square from the White House, Speaker Martin knots his tie as he gets ready to start the day.

When Martin took over the gavel he reiterated his political and legislative goals. First he thought there should be a cut in income taxes. Critics said he was putting the cart before the horse. They said he should cut spending and then cut taxes. He argues, however, that when you start cutting taxes you automatically force the agencies to start thinking about cutting expenses, and that makes the job of cutting spending that much easier. That's his other goal: to cut federal spending and to simplify the federal bureaucracy. He has the peculiar notion that the man-in-the-street should be able to understand what his government is doing and how it operates. One of Martin's great virtues, his friends agree, is modesty. Recently a magazine article claimed he didn't stand a chance to become President because he didn't have a good enough speaking voice and didn't have a colorful enough personality. Martin read the story and said it was about the most sensible thing that had ever been written about him. Martin himself is the first one to tell how embarrassed he was each time he had to recite in school. He has now completely overcome all uneasiness before crowds. But he admits he's no silver-tongued orator. He doesn't look his 62 years. In the past couple of years he's gotten up to about 155 pounds, which makes him chubby for his height. But he has a lot of black hair and a spring and snap about his talk and movements which deny his age.

Bachelor Martin relaxes with a book. Subject: Prosperity.

He was born in North Attleboro, Mass., the oldest of eight children. His father was a blacksmith. At six, young Martin was well-established as a newsboy. Several years later he was making substantial contributions to the support of his family. In high school he was a star athlete and captain of the baseball team. He decided not to go to college. He became a reporter on the Evening Chronicle which he bought in a few years, and still publishes. He supplemented his income as a reporter by playing semi-pro baseball. His first venture into politics came out of his reporting and led to his election to the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1912.

One reason Martin gives for never having married is that he has always worked so hard. It's always a 16-hour-day for him. He begrudges the time he spends in social affairs. He doesn't drink or smoke. His chief diversion is walking—alone. He lives modestly in a two-room bachelor suite. When Congress is not in session, he spends as much time as he can at his cottage at Sagamore Beach on Cape Cod, swimming twice a day.

Dog Notes

DOG WHO LIKED DOG POUND

When Clarence Taylor moved from Pennsylvania to Camden, New Jersey, he took with him his brown and white foxhound, "Pony." Shortly after arriving in the New Jersey city Pony decided to have a look around his new home, and unbeknown to his master he wandered around the strange streets. That very morning the local dog-catcher was scouting for unlicensed dogs, and Pony's Pennsylvania tag did not meet the New Jersey requirements. Consequently Pony landed in the local pound. A couple of days later his master found him, and upon paying the license fee he led his liberated pet home.

The following day Pony was gone. His owner went to the pound to inquire. Sure enough? There he discovered the animal. For some mysterious reason Pony had found the dog pound to his liking, and during the night made his way back there, dug a hole under the enclosing fence, and had gone to sleep in one corner of the yard. What irked the attendants was the fact that four other dogs who didn't like the pound as well had escaped. Again Pony was taken home from the pound, and the hole under the fence was blocked by rocks.

Two days later Pony disappeared again from his home. A new hole was discovered under the pound's fence. In the yard strutting Pony among his new found friends. Since then he has made habitual voluntary trips to the pound yard in spite of the fact that Mr. Taylor has tried to keep him securely chained in his own back yard.

HOT WEATHER FEEDING

What to feed your dog in hot weather is a problem that differs entirely from what you should feed him in the winter. During the cold weather he was more active and his body felt two active needs. The maintenance of energy, and resistance to the cold. Accordingly his digestive system has accepted and utilized all the food supplied him, though some of the food given him might have lacked the elements most essential to him as a carnivorous or meat-eating animal. Oatmeal is a fine food for your dog in the winter as it has a heating tendency. I often feed it to my dogs in the cold weather months and mix it with raw meat, but it should not be fed know that Toscanini cannot stay away from the podium too long.

Whenever they meet (as they do every Tuesday night on Milton Berle's comedy show), Berle and Arnold Stang, who plays the maniacal "Junior," hold a running contest in which Berle tries to stump Stang's memory of famous old comedy routines.

Berle confesses, however, that the contest usually ends in a tie. No matter how far back in the past Berle digs in trying to resurrect a comedy routine that should be new to Stang. Berle, junior by about 20 years, the younger usually halts his delivery with the old line familiar to vaudevillians, "I know the bit." Stang has been studying vaudeville routines since he was 11.

to dogs during the summer. The same might be said of a steady diet of the so-called cereal dog foods that are on the market today. By these I refer to the kind you mix with water or milk before feeding. They are very good as a dog food but I do not recommend them as a steady and sole diet in hot weather. Use them four-or-five times a week as a base with which to mix raw

'Follow' Crop Planted Now Improves Soil Next Year

Most gardeners who are growing vegetables this year have used less space for them than they did in previous years and yet they are getting a fine, heavy crop.

As crops are taken out of the garden to be used (fresh, canned or put into the frozen food locker) the rich garden soil should be immediately planted to a "follow" crop. Not only will this second crop be a very welcome addition to the food supply, but the garden soil will actually be improved for next year. The fall crop will provide a fresh garden supply into the winter months, conserving the canned vegetables for midwinter and early spring use.

For those of you who intend to plant late gardens for fall crops, one of your big jobs is to see the seeds do not dry out during hot weather at planting time. John Dodge, horticulturist, has given a simple way to make a planting furrow with the hoe. You do this in the same way as you would for planting in the spring, but make the furrow a little deeper. Second, give this furrow a deep and thorough soaking. Third, sow the seeds on the wet bottom of this furrow. Fourth, sprinkle from quarter to half-inch of dry soil that you didn't soak over this seed. The amount of dirt you put on depends on the size of the seed planted. Small seeds take less dirt. The last point is to cover the partly filled furrow with a band of mulch material 3 inches wide and 1 1/2 to 2 inches deep. Grass, heavy paper, cardboard or even old boards can be used as a mulch to cover the partly filled furrow. By doing this you'll save water and have a better chance of getting those seeds growing.

FAST GROWTH
During this month, which is generally hot, dry and sunny, it should be remembered that the September and October weather is sure to come. At that time the warm sunshine, warm rains and generally congenial climate will cause many new vegetables to grow much faster and better than during the spring months.

One point must be carefully checked. If your garden soil is light and is liable to dry out easily, vegetables planted from seed this month must be kept plenty moist until the rains come to take care of them naturally. If your soil is unable to provide sufficient natural moisture, even with constant cultivation, it should be supplied artificially by irrigation. On no account should the rapidly growing little plants be allowed to dry out. When necessary, irrigate but don't sprinkle.

There are many quick growing roots that are fine for planting now. Most gardeners agree that beets and carrots, young ones, pulled in September, October have an unusually fine flavor. The ones planted in spring and early summer are now getting quite large and may be left to ment and fresh vegetables, but do not use the cereal dog food alone.

LEAVE DOGS ALONE

On a hot day little annoyances often upset you. The same is true of your dog. In warm weather a dog normally of even disposition may become a little unruly and snap at anyone who attempts to tease him. It is wise to instruct children not to torment a dog on a hot day. In fact, during the heat it is indeed wise to heed the old saying, "Let sleeping dogs lie."

THE QUESTION BOX

Question: What causes ticks to develop in dogs?—R. N. G.

Answer: Ticks are caused by a deficiency of bone salts. Contributory factors are worms, improper feeding, insufficient exercise, absence of exposure to sunlight, damp quarters, or anything that hinders a pup in absorbing lime salts.

Question: My dog is suffering from very sore foot pads. Could you suggest some method of treatment?—T. L.

Answer: Dip your dog's entire foot in warm pine tar once daily for three or four days. If the pads are infected, dab them with iodine and consult a veterinarian.

PERPETUATION!

A MESSAGE TO THE PEOPLE OF BRITISH COLUMBIA ---

Because nearly one-third of the land surface of our Province is suitable only for the growing of tree-crops, it is essential that we manage and cut our forests so that they will provide an annual harvest for all time. Over forty thousand workers in this Province, and their families, are directly dependent on the forest industries for employment and many additional thousands are indirectly affected. No other industry in British Columbia could absorb this body of workers should the forest industries cease to exist. They and their families would perforce have to migrate elsewhere. The B.C. Forest Service is working to ensure continuous production of forest crops for all time, for the benefit of the people of British Columbia. You can also help by being careful with fire when in the forests.
